Most of Victims are Mexican Fruit Pickers.
17 ARE INJURED
Vehicle Carried About 600 Feet; Bodies are Strwn Along Track

McAllen, Texas.—(P)—Twenty-five fruit pickers, mostly Mexicans, were killed today in their orchard-bound truck which was struck squarely in the center at a grade crossing by a Missouri-Pacific passenger train. Seventeen other pickers were injured.

It was the most disastrous wreck in Texas history. The train crashed into the truck at 8:06 a. m., at a crossing six miles east of this lower Rio Grande valley town. It carried the vehicle on its cowcatcher for about 600 yards. Bodies were scattered along the tracks.

Identification of the victims, all passengers in the truck, was slow. Most of them were laborers living in the farm areas around Alamo, Texas.

Truck Burns
The truck burst into flames under the impact of the crash. One body was found charred when the train had stopped.

Homestead, state police director, said "the McAllen crossing wreck apparently is the worst of its kind in Texas history. Our records go back only to 1935 when the public safety department was created but no one here can recall a crossing accident in which more lives were lost."

One of the worst previous crashes occurred Jan. 22, 1927, in which 10 Baylor university students were killed and 12 injured in a crossing accident at Round Rock, Texas.

The train figuring in the McAllen crash runs between Harlingen and Rio Grande City. The track parallels the main lower Rio Grande valley highway.

John Boyce of McAllen, who was driving with a companion on a highway paralleling the track, said: "I saw a big cloud of dust when the train reached the crossing. When we arrived at the scene we saw there had been a wreck. We rushed up to find bodies rolling around on the ground. The train was still moving."

"The dust was so thick for a moment we couldn't tell what had happened, but when we saw the mangled bodies we knew something awful had taken place."

"I ran to a telephone to call the sheriff's office and ambulances and then looked around to see if we could help any of those people. It looked to me like most of them were beyond help. A few minutes later Deputy Sheriff Ingram of the sheriff's office carefully tried to count the bodies."

Counts at Least 25
"I found at least 25."

"We have never seen anything worse in my life. We found one child without its head. We found a man's body severed at the waist. We found another man without head and arms. We found portions of bodies scattered from the point of impact to the front of the engine, a distance of two blocks."

Miss Mary Ann Wall, secretary of the Alamo Citrus association, whose office faces the crossing, "heard a terrible crash."

"When I looked I saw bodies flying in every direction through a sheet of flame. It seemed to me that the gasoline tank of the truck must have exploded."

Japs Deny New Clash With Russian Troops
Tokyo.—(P)—The Japanese war office today disclaimed knowledge of a recurrence of fighting between Japanese and Russian troops on the Manchukuo-Outer Mongolian border, saying it believed such reports were groundless.

Unconfirmed Manchukuoan advice reaching Shanghai said Soviet troops had advanced five miles and were moving up men and equipment on the Trans-Siberian railway.

At least 13 persons were killed and 37 injured by tornado winds which struck hardest at Shreveport, La., and then moved across the border into Texas. Property damage was estimated at $1,000,000 in Shreveport. Shown here is one of the 500 homes damaged by the winds.

Senate Votes $5,000 Limit On Individual Contributions Toward Political Campaigns

Washington.—(P)—The senate approved a $5,000 limitation on political contributions today by attaching an amendment to the pending anti-politics legislation.

The limitation provision, sponsored by opponents of amendments to broaden the Hatch act, carried a vote of 40 to 38.

Senator Bankhead (D-Ala.), author of the limiting provision, immediately clinched his victory when the senate tabled a reconsideration motion 41 to 35.

The Bankhead provision would limit any individual to contributing $5,000 to any candidate or campaign committee and define as a "political activity" any contribution above this.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla.), led off another long assault against broadening the Hatch anti-politics law today, even as one of his colleagues asserted that debate over the extension legislation might tie up the senate all this month.

Sees Long Delay
Senator Minton (D-Ind.), who asserted a final vote was not possible today, told reporters that unless the senate worked faster on amendments "we may not get a vote this month."

Pepper put forward an amendment which was defeated 50 to 28. If the pending legislation to extend Hatch law restrictions to state employees passed, it would permit such employees to take active part in political campaigns. They would, however, be restrained from using their subordinates or using their official influence in behalf of their various candidates.

Pepper told the senate that the Hatch legislation "is not a clean political bill. It is not a bill to prevent corrupt practices or to forbid excessive interference in campaigns by the moneyed interests."

"There has been no clamor for this legislation from the states. The initiator of this bill is the senator from New Mexico and others who have had unfortunate experiences in their state. There is no demand from the mass of the people."

Meanwhile, a senate-house conference committee reached agreement on the appropriation bill carrying funds for more than a score of independent agencies for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Child Fatally Injured In Coasting Accident
Madison.—(P)—Jerome Jackson, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Jackson, of Blanchardville, died at a hospital here last night shortly after he was injured in a coasting accident near his home. Authorities said his sled crashed into the side of an automobile driven by Miss Iris De Voe, music instructor at Blanchardville high school, who was absolved of blame.

Warden Henderson said Frank Benzowski, 33, engineered a "fantastic" escape plan, which involved kidnapping the warden, in an effort to free Russell Clark, 41, and two other life termers.

Clark is serving a life sentence for slaying Sheriff Jess Sarber, shot to death when John Dillinger's henchmen liberated him from the Lima, Ohio, jail.

New Aerial Bomb Will Be Discussed Monday
Washington.—(P)—An inventor's claims for a devastating new aerial bomb, reportedly developed along the principles of Hitler's boasted "secret weapon," prompted a call today for a joint session of congressional committees on the national defense. They were asked to consider the weapon Monday.

The bomb, a liquid oxygen and carbon explosive, was described in private before the senate military affairs committee by its inventor, Lester R. Barlow, Baltimore, yesterday. The session ended on a theatrical note when stenographic notes of Barlow's testimony were burned last details on the bomb became public.

Most Guardsmen Leave Dam After Brief Conference
Officers Remain to Carry Out Orders of Oklahoma Governor
Disney, Okla.—(P)—Fifty-seven Oklahoma national guardsmen reached the Grand river damsite today, then turned around and went back to their mobilization point at Wagoner, leaving a handful of officers to carry on Governor Leon C. Phillips' "state's rights" war.

These northern neighbors already have agreed to talk it over at Phillips' initiative, Tanner said, although they refused such an overture when the war was in progress.

NEW DEFENSE AIM
Government Broadcasts Plea for Continued National Unity

Helsinki.—(P)—Shrouded in peace, Finland today counted on new fortifications and a prospective alliance with Norway and Sweden, if need be, to save her from Czechoslovakia's fate.

Foreign Minister Vaino Tanner made it clear that despite the crushing peace that ended 105 days of war with Soviet Russia, Finland intended to take every step to protect her newly-narrowed borders from future threats.

Asked if fortification of the new borders would be permitted, Tanner flashed back:

"Who is going to stop us?" He added, "our military commanders say all borders are defensible."

Nevertheless, with the great Mannerheim line and most of Finland's other frontier defenses ceded to Russia and a Russian naval base to be established on the key peninsula of Hanko under Tuesday's treaty of Moscow, Finland looked forward to discussions soon aimed at a defensive alliance with Sweden and Norway.

Dead Accounts Before Tribunal
Supreme Court Considers State's Attempt to Collect $13,000
Madison.—(P)—The state supreme court took under advisement today the state's suit to collect approximately $13,000 in "dead" accounts of the Marshall and Isley bank of Milwaukee.

Under the statutes all unclaimed accounts that have been inactive for 20 years become the property of the state for common school purposes.

Although only $13,000 is directly involved, hundreds of state bank accounts totalling about $200,000, may be affected by the court's decision.

The state brought suit against the Milwaukee bank in Dane county circuit court and when the state de murred to the bank's answer Circuit Judge Alvin C. Reis upheld the state's contention that the legality of the law was established by a California supreme court decision in 1923.

Claiming that depositors were deprived of due process of law, the bank appealed to the supreme court.

Two Carferries Break Through Ice Barrier
Manitowish.—(P)—Two carferries, caught in slush ice piled into outer harbor by an east wind, broke through the barrier last night.

The Pere Marquette No. 22 was the first to push through into open water in the inner basin. The Ann Arbor No. 7 followed three hours later.

The No. 7 was trapped at 4 a. m. yesterday. The No. 22 went to her assistance and also became stuck. Ice reached almost to the channel bottom.

A shift in the wind cleared the harbor of most of the ice today.

Nazi U-Boat Captain Sank 66,566 Tons of Shipping, Berlin Says
Berlin.—(P)—The submarine captain who sank the British aircraft carrier Courageous Sept. 13 reported sinking 24,600 tons of shipping on his second cruise, the German high command announced today. Its communique said:

"On the western front, no special events.

"South of Strasbourg one French plane of the Mureaux type was shot down by German anti-aircraft artillery.

Lieutenant Captain Schubart, returning with his U-boat from his latest cruise against the enemy, reported sinking 24,600 tons of shipping. Thus Lieutenant Captain Schubart, who in September last year destroyed the British airplane carrier Courageous, in the course of two cruises against the enemy has sunk a total of 66,566 tons."

While the hostilities continued the censorship policy naturally dictated suppression or minimizing of the damage done by the Soviet air raids to industries and transport vital to continuance of armed resistance.

Former Convict Named As Woman's Assailant
Madison.—(P)—A man tentatively identified as a former convict bound and gagged Mrs. Adeline Brill, a maid in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Holmes, while she was hanging up clothes in the attic of an apartment building here today.

He tied Mrs. Brill's hands and feet with heavy twine and pushed a wad of cloth into her mouth after grabbing her from behind. Then, the woman said, he warned her against "squealing" to police and left the building.

Mrs. Brill attracted attention to her plight by kicking on the floor. Later at police headquarters she identified a picture of a man with a criminal record as that of her assailant.

Mrs. Brill said she saw the man sleeping in the attic yesterday and that he disappeared while she went to call her employer.

REPORT PLEDGE
Berlin.—(P)—Germany, an unimpeachable although non-official source disclosed today, has obtained a confession from Soviet Russia that Russia will be spared, come what may in southeast Europe.

This assurance, which probably will be publicly documented soon, apparently has enabled German diplomacy in turn to make Rumanian incline toward a Russian-Rumanian non-aggression pact.

Negotiations are being conducted in the greatest secrecy but circumstantial evidence points to Berlin as a center where to say the least, the subject is being aired.

German, Russian and Rumanian sources, however, say this capital is not the scene of actual negotiations.

One interesting factor is the recent arrival in Berlin of a Rumanian general. Technically, he is here to negotiate extension on the German-Rumanian trade treaty for Germany's Bohemia-Moravia protectorate.

(Authoritative sources in Bucharest said a Rumanian commission of high army officers was in Berlin.) Just why a military rather than an economic mission should visit Berlin at this time is a mystery.

RED-NAZI PACT SHELVED
London.—(P)—Peace between Soviet Russia and Finland has killed a possibility of Russia and Germany being driven into a full military alliance, authoritative foreign office circles said today.

They asserted it was the British government's view that Russia and Germany are not military allies now nor do they believe Russian aid to Germany will extend beyond the economic sphere.

Since intervention in Finland by the allies first was discussed it was the belief in some informed quarters that intervention on a large scale would result in a Russian-German military alliance.

Disbarred Attorney Bound Over on False Pretenses Charge
Mayville, Wis.—(P)—Elmer P. Zimdars, disbarred Milwaukee attorney, was bound over to the Dodge county circuit court for trial on three charges of obtaining money under false pretenses at the conclusion of a preliminary hearing here yesterday.

Justice of the Peace Elmer Gensner increased his bond from $1,000 to $3,000. Zimdars is expected to be tried next month before Circuit Judge Henry Lockney.

The warrants allege that Zimdars obtained money from persons by promising to procure jobs for them in the state beverage tax division.

Both John Roach, beverage tax division director, and State Treasurer John M. Smith testified that Zimdars had no connection with the office and could not have influenced the selection of employees.

Magician Calls in Vain on Spirit of Clarence Darrow To Communicate With Him

Chicago.—(P)—Claude Noble, a magician, stood on a high bridge in Jackson park, held out a hymn book, and called upon the spirit of Clarence Darrow to manifest itself if it could.

Hopefully, he stood in silence for a full minute. A bird chirped in a naked tree and outside the park the hum of traffic rose and fell. Then he turned to the newspapermen and said: "No manifestation."

It's been the same story for more than 75 years.

Noble, who came from his home in Detroit to conduct the experiment yesterday, said magicians had been trying to get a glimpse into the great beyond since the days of Conic.

Herman the Great tried, and then Harry Keller, Houdini and Howard Thurston. Now it's Noble's turn, and when he's dead, he said, Blackstone would carry on, or Dante, in Europe.

Many Proposals Made for Changes In U. S. Labor Act

Committee Members Agree on Weaknesses But Not on Remedies

BY W. B. RAGSDALE

Washington—(P)—The house labor committee has 20 members and at least 19 different ideas of what should be done about the Wagner act.

That was what its chairman, Mrs. Mary T. Norton, found when in executive session she gave each member two minutes in which to state his views. Although most of those who have done any digging into the subject agree on where the weak spots are to be found, they differ widely on the remedy.

Many of the severest critics of labor board practices agree in private that a different type of administration might have so minimized the complaints as to have eliminated the need for legislative change.

As it stands now, however, even the staunchest friends of the act say the board has hit some sour notes but they think the answer is to be found by hiring a few new singers rather than by rewriting the music and getting a new choir.

Numerous Disputes

Such are the feelings inside the labor committee and the house rules committee, both of which have to approve any labor legislation that reaches the house through regular channels, that some of the house members already are thinking of extraordinary means to bring a bill to the floor. Sectional and factional disputes stand on every side of the labor problem. Some of them grow out of animosities engendered by the long southern fight against the wage-hour law.

All these help to build a barricade which will be hard to break through in those two important committees unless the White House has a magic formula. In the absence of a White House pronouncement, those anxious for a change in the Wagner act already are thinking of starting petitions which, if 218 signatures are obtained, would take the bill away from committees and force house action.

But to get 218 signers, the Democrats wanting a change would have to combine with house Republicans. No one has said so publicly, but the Republicans might figure that since the responsibility for legislating does not generally fall on the minority party, it is not up to them to help out through a revised labor law. They might decide that it would be more embarrassing to the Democrats if the law were left unchanged.

front that the Russian raiders were crippling.

Elisenvaara already was in ruins when we left out it was bombed again repeatedly in succeeding days. Viipuri, seaport at the western end of the Karelian front, was so systematically bombed it was so less as a supply base even before the Soviet troops advanced to within easy artillery range.

Turku, vital western seaport and industrial center, was raided almost daily and bomb damage to harbor facilities and vital factories was disastrous.

Tamere—munitions center—was scoured systematically by large fleets of bombers.

Civilian morale everywhere was magnificent—but with factory after factory is destroyed and even foreign supplies and munitions cannot be moved to the front over railroads without the greatest of handicaps and despite heroic work of railwaymen, how can soldiers continue fighting?

In the midst of increasing transport difficulties the Russian drive against the Mannerheim line was intensified.

No Such Thing as 'Imposing' on Him. Prosecutor Is Told

Lansing—(P)—Attorney General Thomas Read holds that there is no legal method by which a prosecuting attorney may prevent a county welfare board from "imposing" on him.

Read's opinion was requested by Frank C. Condon, Houghton county prosecutor, who complained that the Houghton county welfare director was "imposing on our office" and that he was called upon to "draw briefs, appear in court and practically everything else."

Read suggested Condon attempt to obtain funds from his board of supervisors to employ an assistant, adding that the law required the prosecutor to provide all legal services for the board.

Questions Tariff Cuts for Cheese

W a u p a c a Congressman Says Nobody Has Justified Reductions

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—(P)—Congressman Reid F. Murray, Waupaca Republican, declares that "no member of congress, no member of the state department or no member of the agricultural department" has yet tried to justify tariff reductions on cheese.

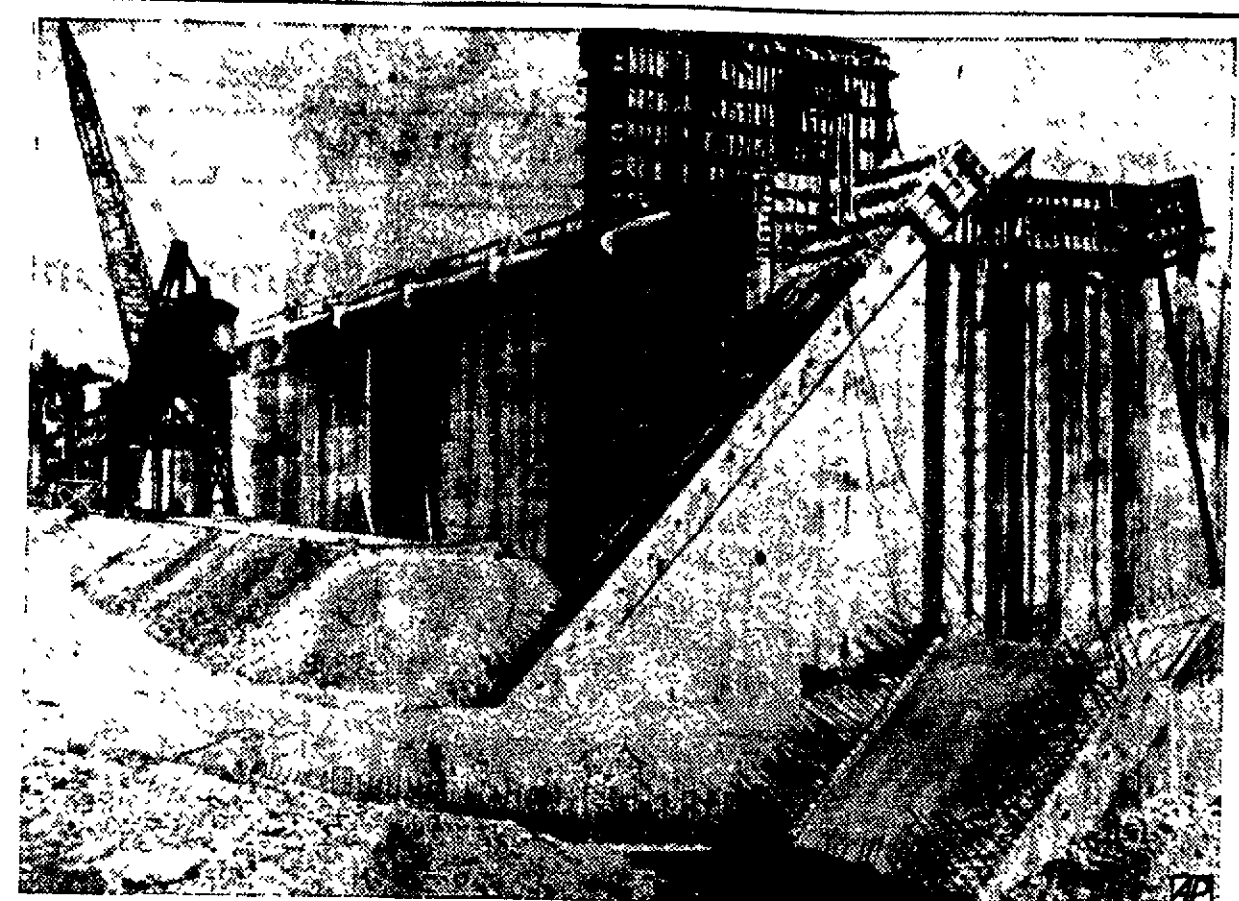

"I have never been able to find out who the 'experts' were that recommended the reduction of this tariff on cheese," he says, referring specifically to 1938. At that time, he states, the tariff was reduced when cheese averaged less than two-thirds of parity, thus giving the dairy industry "a blow, from which it will take time to recover."

"The prices of fluid milk may be fixed for the consumer and farmer by delegation of power to the secretary of agriculture," Murray told the house, "but the ultimate price to the consumer, and also the producer of fluid milk is influenced by the price of the manufactured product."

"I have never felt that one should make any effort to lower the prices obtained by the farmer for fluid milk and break this market down," Murray continued. "However, I have many times pointed out that the large percentage of the total milk production which goes into the manufactured product cannot always be used as the 'shock absorber' for the industry. For example, Washington milk at 14 cents a quart has equalled the retail price of cheese in Washington stores, while it takes about 5 quarts of milk to make one pound of cheese."

"We must all work for a consolidation and a correlation of all agricultural agencies which must 'mesh' if we are ever going to get our agricultural house in order," Murray concluded. "We cannot continue to fix prices for one part of the industry and let the other part of the industry be the 'shock absorber' for the protected part of the dairy industry."

ICC Refuses to Reopen Rate Case

South Won Important Victory in South-to-North Suit

Washington—(P)—The Interstate Commerce Commission refused today to reopen for reargument its decision in the long-fought south-to-north freight rate case, in which the south won an important victory.

The commission also today ordered reductions put into effect June 1. As in the original decision, the commission voted 5 to 4 against granting petitions filed by the northern railroads and northern intervenors for reargument and rehearing.

The report said that after careful consideration of the petitions and review of the evidence the ICC found no reason warranting reopening of the proceedings.

In its original decision the commission ordered reductions in rates on 18 commodities from the south to the north to a basis approximating that within the north. The south-to-north rates on the commodities involved now are about 37 per cent higher than the rates within the north.

Mussolini Intends to Keep Reds Out of Balkans but Prefers to Stay Neutral

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(P)—Of highest importance—especially with all Europe in ferment over the Russo-Finnish "peace" and its potentialities—is Italian Undersecretary Soddu's announcement that Italy is ready to defend its liberty of action with a million trained men under arms and with a fortified bulwark across its Alpine frontiers.

The general added that the frontier defenses facing both Germany and France had been strengthened. That's making distrust, or caution, both ways.

This supplements, accidentally or otherwise, the straight-from-the-shoulder message which Nazi Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop is understood to have taken back to Fuhrer Hitler from Signor Mussolini earlier this week—that Italy will stay out of war so long as the fascist chief considers it advantageous.

What these two announcements amount to is that Il Duce—who is a very practical man—is free-lancing. And he will fight to maintain his prerogatives. You couldn't ask for a more blunt definition of policy, though you probably would like more details.

Mussolini's message may have had a rather formal and dubious ring in Hitler's ears, unless perchance Herr Von Ribbentrop also carried to his leader a private word of affection and assurance from Il Duce—which I take the liberty of doubting most decidedly.

Vital Point

It isn't that Hitler wants his partner in the Berlin-Rome axis to come into the war, for I don't believe he does. But there must be an anxious question in the fuhrer's mind as to which way the Italian leader will go if and when he does get into the conflict.

The duce's statement of policy stops short of clearing up that point, so far as the public knows. And it is a vital point for Hitler as he rapidly approaches a moment when the drums of war may start to roll out a summons to bloody conflict.

Signor Mussolini is a pretty smart man. He may not always go in the direction he wishes to take, but he generally goes in the direction which common sense dictates, under his code.

Common-sense impels him to neutrality or as he prefers to put it, non-belligerency. That expression "non-belligerency" is a concession to his affiliation with Hitler, and to his avowed determination to resist any bolshevist invasion of the Balkans.

Non-belligerency happens to be the course of both wisdom and preference. Wisdom dictates that Il Duce refrain from being caught with pow-

U. S. Continues to Watch Red Union Despite War End

'Moral Embargoes' Against Russia Expected To Stay in Effect

Washington—(P)—With President Roosevelt indicating uneasiness over Finland's future, the United States will continue to regard Russia warily for some time.

This became apparent today when it was learned from a reliable source that the "moral embargoes" against Russia, imposed by Mr. Roosevelt and the state department after the Soviet invasion of Finland, would be maintained indefinitely regardless of the Baltic peace.

The president laid down the "moral embargo" on the shipment of airplanes and parts to Russia early in December. This was later amplified by the state department to include materials going into the manufacture of airplanes, such as molybdenum and aluminum, and also plants and plans for the manufacture of aviation gasoline.

No move to lift any of these embargoes will be made for some time, it was learned, because:

New Move Possible

1. Officials are not sure that Russia will not again move against a Finland weakened by the peace treaty, as Germany did against Czechoslovakia weakened by the detachment of the Sudetenland.

2. Nor are they sure that Russia, now that her hands are freed by the peace treaty with Finland, will not move against other nations, perhaps in the Balkans or the Near East.

3. Nor are they sure that materials sent to Russia are not going through to Germany.

President Roosevelt's concern over the Finnish situation was expressed in a statement issued by the White House late yesterday. He said:

"The ending of this war does not yet clarify the inherent right of small nations to the maintenance of their integrity against attack by superior force."

Fraises Finns

"The people of Finland, by their unexcelled valor and strong resistance in the face of overwhelming armed forces, have won the moral right to live in everlasting peace and independence in the land they have so bravely defended."

The Finnish people and government, Mr. Roosevelt continued, again have increased "the respect and warm regard in which they are held by the people and government of the United States. Even though it is clear that by virtue of an attack by a neighbor many times stronger, they have been compelled to yield territory, and to accept a material weakening of their own future defense of their independence."

That the president still resents Russian aerial bombardment of Finnish cities, which provoked the "moral embargoes" against the Soviet, was clear from the White House statement. It mentioned Mr. Roosevelt's statement of Dec. 1, in which he said that news of the Soviet naval and military bombings within Finnish territory "had come as a profound shock."

Continued financial support of Finland is pledged by Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, who is keeping the $20,000,000 allocated by the Export-Import bank available to the republic, regardless of the fact that the war is over.

Mack Doesn't Like Heil's Plan Of Closing 4 Highway Offices

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau) Madison—Senator Mike Mack of Wisconsin, influential Republican member of the legislative upper house, said here yesterday that he is opposed to the abolition of four division offices of the state highway commission as recently recommended by Gov. Heil to the commission.

Mack is chairman of the senate committee on highways, and longtime chairman of the Outagamie county board. In the 1939 session of the legislature he was given much of the credit for the defeat of Governor Heil's highway department reorganization program, of which the present recommendations are a part.

On the advice of Director August Frey of the division of research, Heil has asked the highway commission to eliminate offices now maintained at Lancaster, Rhineland, Eau Claire, and Milwaukee. Mack said that the move was ordered without any consultation with county highway departments, which deal directly with the division offices of the state highway department in most instances, and disregarded the fact that abolition of some of the offices will mean greater expense for travel to counties.

He added that while the division offices may be dispensed with this year, because of the improbability of any considerable highway building program, "the day cannot long be delayed when we will have to build highways, and then we'll need those branch offices."

Mack suggested conferences between the governor's office, the state highway commission, and county highway officials before final action on the Heil suggestion is taken. Highway authorities probably know more about the need of the branch services than does the state division of research, he observed.

Game Club Will Seek to Reduce Gun Accidents

Committee Appointed to Get Movie, Promote Arms Safety

Percy Brandt, of the Manitowoc Arms Safety council, outlined safety activities in Manitowoc at a meeting of the Outagamie Conservation club, Inc., Tuesday night at Greenville.

The meeting was held at Greenville to create interest in county conservation activities and to increase membership in that area.

After Brandt's outline of the work in Manitowoc to reduce accidents from firearms, Wilbur Steenis, club president, appointed a committee to promote a similar program in Outagamie county. The club will apply for an arms safety film from the state of Pennsylvania to be shown in the schools and before clubs. On the committee are F. M. Floor, Fred Rehfeldt and Phelan VanRyzin.

Floor, chairman of the Wild Life Exhibit committee, reported that the display of animals, fish and birds will be held at Pierce park May 17, 18 and 19. He told the club the city council and county board have offered to underwrite the exhibit.

The club was told that in the last two months 37 rabbits have been trapped in Appleton and released at Center Swamp. The club early this winter offered to relieve property owners of the rabbits which destroy plants and shrubbery.

The board of directors will meet within a few days to make final arrangements for the club's booster party scheduled in April.

House Group Favors Setting Aside Day For New Citizens

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—The resolution introduced by Congressman Joshua L. Johns, Algoma Republican, providing that the last Sunday in May of each year be set aside as Citizenship Recognition day has received a favorable report by the house judiciary committee and is expected to be brought before the house next Monday.

Johns now has assurance from Senators Charles L. McNary, Oregon Republican, and Lister Hill, Alabama Democrat, that identical legislation will be offered soon in the senate.

Citizenship Recognition day is for the recognition "of all who, through coming of age or naturalization, have reached the status of active citizenship." The resolution provides that all educational authorities "be urged to make plans for the proper observance of this day and for the full instruction of future citizens in their responsibilities and opportunities as active citizens."

John stresses that the 2,000,000 young men and women in the United States who, each year, reach voting age should "be prepared for the responsibilities and impressed with the significance of their status in our self-governing republic."

Liquor Industry Trying Private Policing System

Plan Calls for 1-Man Ruler Who Is Prosecutor and Judge

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Something of penetrating interest to all business is happening inside the distilled spirits industry—an effort to establish a private policing system in which competitors agree by contract to refrain from doing various things deemed undesirable from a commercial viewpoint.

Naturally the plan has won commendation from some of those who believed in the NRA code system which was held unconstitutional, but it has aroused opposition among others in the liquor business who say that the proposed contract is a form of self-government which should never be permitted.

The terms of the contract have not been made public, but have been widely circulated among members of the distilled spirits industry and the trade press. The plan calls for a 1-man ruler—in this case Dr. Wesley Sturges, formerly professor at Yale—who becomes at once the prosecutor and the judge and, if his decisions are to be appealed, they must be presented to arbitration.

What is most surprising, however, is that business men in America have already forgotten what the supreme court of the United States by unanimous opinion said in the NRA case about delegated power. The fact that the policing system is voluntarily accepted by an industry has not altered the view of the courts that codes established under the NRA could not be lawfully continued. The oil men found this out to their sorrow when the department of justice prosecuted them recently in the middle west for doing subsequent to the NRA what they had originally been advised to do under the NRA by the department of the interior.

The proposed liquor code endeavors to reach certain practices wherein it is alleged that state liquor purchasing boards are influenced by improper means and it also seeks to prevent competitors in the distilled spirits industry from making gifts to retailers or from giving them various kinds of merchandising discounts.

Purpose Of Code

The purpose of the code is in part reformation of commercial practices but in large part it is designed to regulate an industry from within by the use of a private policing system to which all members agree in advance. One wonders why the federal alcohol administration or the federal trade commission is not entrusted with the task inasmuch as this is the only uniform way to apply any existing statutes governing trade practices. Clearly no matter how many members of the distilled spirits industry accept the code, there is no way to bind dissenters or those newcomers who may subsequently decide to go into the liquor distribution business. In fact, it is a short step from the proposed contract in the distilled spirits industry to informal understandings allotting territory and other business advantages to certain members of the code cartel. If competitors may lawfully bind themselves to accept decisions on one set of merchandising problems from a central authority set up by themselves in the conduct of their business, any other set of commercial understanding relating to competitive practices could be similarly put into effect and this is what the Sherman Anti-Trust law was designed to prevent.

The liquor business needs much more attention to plans for spreading a doctrine of moderation in the use of beverages containing high alcoholic content than it needs so much emphasis on collateral business practices which the federal and state governments ought themselves to police anyway. Some day the distilled industry members will recognize that prohibition sentiment swings in cycles and that social evils produced as a consequence of intensive selling of distilled spirits

161 Students Will Enter Contests at College Saturday

More Than $4,000 in Tuition Offered as Prizes By Lawrence

A total of 161 high school seniors and students a year removed from high school but not attending college have entered the Lawrence college and Lawrence Conservatory of Music contests which will be held on the campus Saturday, college authorities reported today.

The college contest has drawn 107 students and the conservatory contest, 54, the greatest number of contestants in the 3-year history of the competition.

Prize money of more than $4,000 won in the contests is credited to the tuition accounts of the winners at the college or conservatory.

Judges for both contests will be faculty members. Contestants must rank in the upper quarter of their high school class. No student can compete in more than one contest.

The conservatory's 18 prizes are as follows:

A prize of $200 in each of the following fields: piano, voice, organ, stringed instruments.

A prize of $150 in each of the following fields: piano, voice, organ, stringed instruments, and wind instruments.

Four prizes of $100 and four honorable mention prizes of $50 each, awarded at the discretion of the judges.

The college will award 16 prizes in competitive examinations covering chemistry, physics, French, German, Latin, English and American history.

There will be grand prizes of $200, five prizes of $150, five prizes of $100, and five prizes of $50.

REQUESTS LICENSE

An application for a license to tend bar in Appleton was filed yesterday by Edward H. Dewall, 803 N. Morrison street at the office of the city clerk. The request will be considered by the city council's license committee.

might well call for a set of principles to be publicly proclaimed and privately obeyed by the industry rather than a contract which looks like a scheme primarily to protect competitors against one another's business aggressiveness.

Two Supervisors and Assessors Opposed In Town of Brillion

Forest Junction — Seventy-two voters of the town of Brillion, participating in an annual caucus at the town hall here Tuesday afternoon, placed the following candidates for town offices in nomination to be voted on in the April 2 election: Theodore Kersten, town chairman, incumbent, without opposition; William Pritzl and Arthur L. Schnell, incumbents, and Charles Schaefer for supervisors; Hilbert Radloff, incumbent, unopposed for town clerk; E. A. Rusch, incumbent, for treasurer; Erwin Abel, incumbent, and Frank Wiegert, for assessor.

Scattered voting for justice of peace resulted in the nomination of Edward Freitag for both a full term and to fill a vacancy, with S. E. Jansch also nominated for the vacancy. Earl Jansch and Max Schuler, each with eight votes, were placed in nomination for town constable.

The caucus committee for next year will be the same as for 1940—R. A. Huebner, Marrow Schubring and John Seybold being reelected to that position.

Find Mother Stores Extra Food, Energy Before Birth

BY STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Associated Press Science Writer
New Orleans, La.—Babies are provided with a natural springboard to life shortly before birth.

In a report discussed Wednesday by scientists of the federated biological societies prior to the opening of the annual meeting of the organization, Dr. Louis B. Flexner of the Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, Md., and Dr. Richard B. Roberts of the Carnegie institution of Washington declared that in man and animals the mother stores up an extra surge of food and energy for several days before birth occurs.

One of the world's largest atom-smashing machines was the principal medical instrument used in finding how nature provides the pre-birth catapult.

Dr. Roberts used the Carnegie institution's huge electrostatic generator to bombard ordinary salt with particles of atoms until it became radioactive, giving off rays similar to those emitted by radium.

Dr. Flexner then injected it into various animals, including humans and studied its progress through the body by detecting the radioactivity of various parts, a procedure which is coming into wide use to trace the distribution of chemicals after they are administered—a procedure never possible before.

The Johns Hopkins scientist found that shortly before birth the placenta, which carries nourishment from the mother to the baby, suddenly becomes much more permeable, admitting a freer flow of food to the infant to carry it through the critical period of birth and maintain it for many hours later.

Counties Hope to Hold Money Due Employment Fund

State Presses Claims for Assessments Made Before July 1, 1939

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The prospect of legal action by several counties to prevent the state's collection of old unemployment compensation accounts loomed Wednesday as the industrial commission pressed claims against a number of counties and municipalities for unemployment compensation contributions assessed before July 1, 1939.

In mid-summer of last year, by act of the legislature, counties were allowed to elect coverage under the unemployment compensation system. A considerable number of local units of government withdrew from the system under the terms of the optional law. The present controversy arises out of the state's claim to the funds contributed before their withdrawal.

(Outagamie county withdrew from the unemployment compensation plan last July 1 and made its final contribution to the fund this week. Claims up to last July 15 are to be paid from the assessment while the remainder will revert to the state.)

In contrast to the system in effect for private employers, municipalities had available to them two methods of meeting their taxes under the unemployment insurance system.

Two Methods
They could remit cash payments directly to the state, in the method prescribed for all other employers, or they could set up a separate bookkeeping account and credit to it their payments provided they were strictly earmarked for unemployment benefits only.

However, according to Paul Raushenbush, unemployment compensation division chief, state and federal laws are designed to insure that all taxes paid for unemployment compensation shall be used only for benefit payments. Therefore when any employer withdraws from the system — either through the dissolution of his business in private enterprise, or by exercise of the elective privilege by municipalities — the balance in his reserve reverts to the state fund, to be credited to the "pooled reserve" and used to supplement the reserve accounts of those employers whose funds have been exhausted.

The present issue comes of the state's effort to claim such old balances from the municipalities which set up their own bookkeeping accounts for unemployment compensation tax contributions, but who have since withdrawn from the fund. State courts authorities have suggested collective court action in order to restrain the state from collecting.

18 Catechisms to be Examined Palm Sunday

Forest Junction — A class of 18 catechisms will be examined at the Palm Sunday service at Zion Evangelical church at 10:30 Sunday morning by the Rev. Philip Schneider, local pastor. Members of the class are Kenneth Dehmer, Irene Dunker, Rosella Huebner, Dwayne Knoepfel, Alvin Ott, Jo Ann Ott, Miriam Zick, Merlin Zahn, Audrey Walker, Lois Stanello, Betty Schriber, Harriet Schnell, Clyde Schley, Mabel Renke, Virginia Otto, Helen Boe-elager and Wilmer Schley.

The monthly meeting of the parent-teacher association was held at McKinley school Tuesday evening and engaged in a discussion of children's quartets. Mrs. R. C. Dehmer was in charge of the discussion. A scheduled address on "The History of Medicine" by Dr. P. J. Woltersheim was deferred until some future meeting and a study of parliamentary procedure was substituted. As an entertainment feature, a motion picture, "The New Oregon Trail" was shown.

$1.256 in Delinquent Taxes in Brillion Town

Forest Junction — Of a tax roll of $25,481.87, a total of $1,256.63 has gone on the delinquent list, according to E. A. Rusch, Brillion town treasurer, who has been completing his records of collections during January and February. Of the delinquent amount, $1,226.03 is on real estate; $30.80 is delinquent on personal property. Delinquencies a year before were somewhat less, the figure for real estate being $985.16 and that for personal property $23.07 in March, 1939.

A portable sawmill which had been operating at the Dewey Sianelle farm concluded a run of 30,000 feet of lumber on Monday and returned that afternoon to its base at Kiel. It had been operating for four and one-half days. Another portable mill at the Albert Fredrich farm will also be saving an accumulation of logs this spring.

John Adams probably started the custom of observing the Fourth of July as a national holiday. When the Declaration of Independence was signed, July 4, 1776, he said the day "ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with guns, bells and bonfire."

THE BATTLE OF THE TAX COLLECTOR

About a year ago some of the leaders of the Wisconsin legislature discussed briefly one of the most vital problems confronting American government today, the problem of the conflicting tax activities of our various units of government, state, federal and local.

For more than a century after the founding of the American nation and the federal system, there was an implied system of segregating the various sources of public revenue in order to avoid expensive duplication and conflict, and double and multiple assessments of the citizenry.

Thus for many decades the customs and excise duties were regarded as basic sources of federal revenue, while the general property tax, inheritance tax, and corporation taxes were almost exclusively state sources of financing. The local units depended almost wholly upon the property tax, as creatures of the states.

But the mad scramble for what remained in the taxpayer's purse in the early years of the depression wrecked that sensible, economical, and eminently fair system of supporting public institutions. Even before that time, the states had turned over to the federal government the right to use the income tax. Then came the tobacco taxes, state invasions of federal fields. Wisconsin, one of the last to grab at this fertile field of easy money, did so last year. By that action the states invited federal claim jumping in state fields. Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills opposed state taxation of tobacco, and added that if they persisted in doing so, then congress might as well tax gasoline—which congress promptly proceeded to do.

As one observer noted: "In other words, if the tax situation was already becoming chaotic, the federal government might as well step in to do what it could to make it worse."

How to find a way out of the jumble of tax conflicts which we find today is hard to say, for it is quite apparent that we shall not be able to induce our governments to return to their old spending habits. But meanwhile it is quite as obvious that it is ridiculous for the dealer in certain staple commodities, such as gasoline and cigarettes, to take out one cent for Washington, and four cents for Madison, and two cents for Madison and six cents for Washington, and that we cannot continue indefinitely with the present amorphous tax structure in which each unit taxes everything which it can get between the covers of the statute book without regard to the needs, or the prerogatives, of the others.

In recent years belated efforts have been made by private and professional tax analysts and students to provide a way out of the mess. All such efforts should have our whole-hearted encouragement, if only because of the probability that a single tax collector in a single field will not be as voracious as two prove themselves to be today.

FEMININE SURPLUSES

Because men are dying faster than women, sociologists foresee the occurrence in this country of population sex ratios which upset normal balances following the World war.

The killing of millions of young men in that conflict left several countries with a surplus of women of marriageable age and a shortage of prospective husbands. One effect of the unbalanced ratio of the sexes was an increase in marriages between older men and young women followed by an increase in divorces and a decline in the birth rate.

Now insurance statisticians come forward with the report that the same shift is taking place in the United States. Since 1900 the ratio of females to males has been increasing steadily, they report. During the century the mortality rate in general has declined, but the reduction has not been anywhere near as great for males as for females. During this period the death rate of white male babies under one year old decreased 61 per cent, that of girls 63 per cent. For the 20-year-old group, the decline in death rates was 65 per cent for young women and only 57 per cent for young men. At 40, the reduction was 52 per cent for women and only 40 for men, and at 60 the difference was even greater, the decline being 28 per cent for women and only 7 for men.

The figures leave no doubt that although the death rate for both sexes is less than it was it is not nearly as much less for males as for females. Short-sighted males might cursorily conclude that the trend is favorable to them because it gives them a larger selection in their choice of mates. They should be asked: But what of the female surplus? Either the men will have to support them, or more and more women will be taking over employment previously given to men—or the number of female recipients of government relief will increase.

Even that old saying, "You can't live with 'em and you can't live without 'em," gives no adequate answer.

TO THE CANDIDATES

New York Mayor LaGuardia's impromptu address in Birmingham, Ala., the other day contained excellent counsel for presidential candidates. The mayor was frankly critical of the candidates for their common resort to generalities and their refusal to be specific.

At one point, Mr. LaGuardia said "you cannot feed people on epigrams, no matter how snappy they are," and at another added, "We cannot talk in generalities, but if a man is a candidate he seemingly cannot be specific . . ."

The only correction that might be made of the New York mayor's comment is that it's not so much a matter of the candidates being unable to be specific as it is a case of unwillingness. By resorting to generalities a candidate can pound the table, rumple his hair and unleash high sounding phrases without committing himself to any particular point. He can make quite an effective presentation of nothing in this way. Without saying anything important he may be able to convince his audience that his knowledge is profound.

LaGuardia's criticism will find agreement from one end of the country to the other and among Democrats and Republicans. If there ever was a campaign which called for plain speaking it is this one. The problems before the nation are critical. They need specific treatment, not high flown oratory.

Cynical political bosses, of course, maintain that generalized oratory fools the public. Undoubtedly it has in the past, but there is a growing view that the voters this year are listening much more critically than in the past and will be much harder to fool. If that is true, the hope is that it is very true, the candidate who speaks honestly will have the best chance. And the kind of candidate who has the courage to speak honestly is the best presidential timber.

PRISON CAMPS

The state of Wisconsin during the last few years has operated five prison camps and farms, three in northern Wisconsin, one in the eastern section of the state, at Oneida, and another in Dane county. In those camps normal and healthy inmates of prisons are put to work at useful tasks, jobs which have some rehabilitative value, and which also contribute to the permanent wealth of the state.

Now state welfare officials indicate that they will try to expand the prison camp idea, in order to reduce the inmate load and the expense of the penal institutions and to speed the program of rehabilitation of prisoners which the state has adopted as the basic part of its penal policy.

Most of us will support the proposal to extend the prison camps as far as feasible. It is obvious that such projects benefit the public, in reducing the costs of our prison charges, and that they benefit the inmate more than would detention behind grey stone walls.

There is plenty of work to do in non-competitive fields, as we all know. Almost ten years ago the governor of the state in a message to the legislature pointed to the fact that "the present liability that the state and its local subdivisions possess in their vast areas of cut-over land can be turned into an asset in meeting the problem of our crowded prisons."

That liability remains today, as big as ever. There is no immediate opportunity in the upper third of Wisconsin to put prisoners to work at projects which private capital will not and cannot undertake with the hope of immediate profit, but which are of fundamental importance nevertheless. They include the construction of fire lanes, the planting of trees, the cleaning out of dangerous fire areas, the development of recreational sites in the wooded areas, and the weeding out of reforested areas.

Here there cannot be the cry of prison competition with free labor, for there is enough work in the north to occupy a thousand men a thousand years.

FROM DOWN UNDER

The favorable impression that Australia's first minister to the United States, Richard G. Casey, is making in Washington augurs well for continued friendly relations between the two countries. Mr. Casey is no stranger to this country, having been a visitor here several times. Once he came over to tour copper mines and metallurgical plants and once to study the manufacture of fertilizers.

Mr. Casey has struck Americans as being particularly democratic. Both he and his wife are veteran fliers and he plans to buy a plane here for his own use. Friendly, energetic and unaffected he is the kind of person who will make many friends in America.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

A GARDEN IS A PRAYER

A garden is an answered prayer.
It is the sower's faith.
That God will breathe upon the air
And raise the flowers from death.

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—One of the most significant factors behind the Finnish-Russian peace maneuvers is that they were inspired in large part by the invisible hand of the No. 2 Nazi, Field Marshal Hermann Goering.

Acting for him is the most powerful man in Scandinavia, Axel Wenner Gren, who has been a close friend of the German Air Minister ever since Goering married his first wife, the niece of Swedish Baron Rosen. Somewhere in the Finnish-Russian peace picture also (though the state department denies it) may be Sumner Welles.

Wenner Gren, who controls the Bofors munitions company and is the richest man in Sweden, was on his yacht, the Southern Cross, in the harbor of Nassau a few weeks ago when he received a coded message from Goering. The cable asked him to take the same ship as Welles took on his peace mission.

Wenner Gren flew to New York, boarded the Rex, and when he got to Rome, saw Mussolini before Welles did.

BUSINESS AGAINST WAR

Goering's and Wenner Gren's interest in Finnish peace is easy to understand. From the viewpoint of the German army it would be just as disastrous to have Russia sweep through Finland and perhaps on to Sweden, as to have the allies organize an expeditionary force to stop Russia.

In either case, Sweden's rich iron deposits would fall into the hands of a foreign power. What the German army wants is a relatively tranquil Russia, from which Germany can draw raw materials. Also, the longer Russia is forced to continue fighting, the more vulnerable she becomes in the south, where are located the rich Batum oil fields, now invaluable to Germany.

Similarly, an allied expeditionary force sent through Sweden, perhaps turning that country into a battlefield, would ruin the Wenner Gren interests. He is chairman of the Swedish Cellulose company, one of the largest part of the Kreuger interests, and heads the Electrolux company, Swedish parent of the American subsidiaries which make vacuum cleaners and refrigerators.

Note—The peace activity of Axel Wenner Gren illustrates the attitude of big business in both Wall Street and London's City. Unlike the case in the last war, American bankers are ardent rooters for peace. This time not they, but Uncle Sam, through Jesse Jones, is lending the money. Not only is there no money in war, but if Nazi-Communism wins, the capitalistic system stands in danger.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Hugh Wilson, who was recalled as United States ambassador to Germany, hasn't a chance of going back. He has decided to gamble on Republican victory next November, and has been flitting with the Republican National committee. Roosevelt is down on him. . . . Axel Wenner Gren, although a friend of Goering's, is quite pro-American. His dark-eyed fascinating wife comes from Kansas City. . . . The Wenner Gren yacht, the Southern Cross, rescued 376 of the Athenian survivors last September. . . . Also it was the home of Greta Garbo during her recent stay in Florida and Bahamian waters. On it Greta ate copiously instead of dieting. Her dietician was trying to get her to put more weight around her shoulders. . . . Greta's wardrobe aboard the Southern Cross was so meagre that she wore slacks most of the time, hardly an evening dress. Friends attributed this to the fact that she never goes shopping—that means being stared at.

QUAKER AMBASSADOR

If and when new ambassadors are exchanged between the United States and Germany—as now seems probable—the man most likely to go to Berlin as United States envoy is a Quaker named Clarence Pickett. Pickett is head of the American Friends Service committee, a friend of Mrs. Roosevelt's and also close to Myron Taylor, ex-chairman of United States Steel and now American peace negotiator at the Vatican.

Pickett's appointment as ambassador to Germany is being promoted by these two powerful friends on the ground that the United States needs someone in Berlin who is in touch not merely with Nazi officialdom, but with the German people.

Pickett for many years has helped maintain a Friends' center in both Berlin and Vienna. This dates back to the days immediately after the Armistice when the Quakers sent relief missions to Austria and Germany, at one time were feeding most of the children in both countries.

Ever since, the Friends' centers in Berlin and Vienna have been given great freedom—even under Hitler.

MINERS' FRIENDS

Pickett now heads all of the Quaker relief work, and has been active not merely in Europe, but particularly among the unemployed in the United States. It was he who initiated the attempt to settle unemployed coal miners at Arthurdale, W. Va., later taken over by Rural Resettlement and now one of Mrs. Roosevelt's pet projects.

Mrs. Roosevelt has given all of her radio income and part of her newspaper income to this and other American Friends Service committee work. Myron Taylor, when chairman of the U. S. Steel Corporation, also was interested in the unemployed among miners and contributed $25,000 annually to Pickett for three years for their relief.

Failure of the United States to keep an ambassador in Berlin was one of the things for which Hitler is reported to have scolded Sumner Welles. Subsequently, Welles worked out a plan whereby Ambassador Dieckhoff, former German ambassador here, would return to Washington.

AMERICA'S STEP-CHILDREN

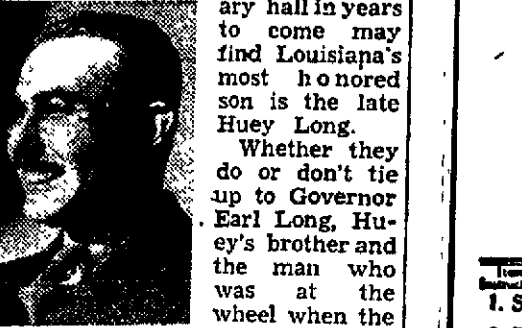

Secretary Ickes is having a tough time getting someone to head his division of territories and island possessions. No less than four people have been offered the job since the promotion of Dr. Ernest Gruening to be governor of Alaska. Everyone of them turned it down.

The first was Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, just after he retired from the navy sailed from his spectacular mission as commander of the Asiatic fleet. Then Ickes offered it to Wayne Taylor, former assistant secretary of the treasury and now an official of the American Red Cross. Taylor also thought it was too much of a headache.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—The Long machine in Louisiana has met the fate of the one-hoss shay but visitors to Washington's Statuary hall in years to come may find Louisiana's most honored son is the late Huey Long.

Stinnett

Back in 1884, when the Civil war was grinding out here at a dizzy pace, Congress decided to take the matter in hand. It passed a law. The law said each state could have two nice pedestals in Statuary hall, to support the statues of the deceased heroes that state considered worthy of such honor.

When Louisiana got back in the union fold, it paid no attention to the law. But in 1938, the state legislature found a hero to their liking and put up $15,000 for a statue of the assassinated "Kingfish." After that gesture, they did nothing about withdrawing the money from the treasury and the appropriation will go back to the state for something else if it isn't withdrawn before July, 1941.

Governor Long hasn't that much time. His official sun sets May 14, when he goes out of office. If he acts before then, the name and figure of Huey Long will be perpetuated along with such heroes as Samuel Adams, Henry Clay, Jeff Davis, Daniel Webster, Sam Houston, Robert Fulton and John C. Calhoun, in one of the nation's most distinguished halls of fame.

Both in Washington and Louisiana, the state officials asked about it, wouldn't say yes and wouldn't say nay, and the new administration hasn't even hinted what they'll do if Governor Long doesn't choose to put brother Huey in the Capitol. It would hardly seem right, though, to expect the new anti-Long administration to honor the man who sewed up Louisiana politics in his own little sack and for so many years refused them even one little peek.

There is, by the by, hardly any better way for a state to memorialize one of its distinguished sons than by putting him up in marble or bronze in Statuary hall. Even when the deeds of the dead hero are forgotten and his name stirs only a vague recollection, there are the Capitol guides to jog the memory of older visitors to Washington and tell new generations how these men reached their pedestals in this hall of the mighty.

They have to do little explaining, of course, about Washington or Calhoun or Andrew Jackson or Ethan Allen or Robert E. Lee or Roger Williams. They're all well remembered in the history books. But here Georgia has wisely written a permanent record for Dr. Crawford William Long whose pioneering with ether anesthesia in 1842 saved him a high place in the nation's medical history. And Kentucky has honored Ephraim McDowell, another distinguished physician, who performed the first ovariectomy—the operation that annually saves thousands of women's lives—in 1809 and almost lost his life at the hands of a mob because of it.

There are in all 72 statues from 33 states. Statuary hall reached its peak in 1933. Guess that 1894 congress never figured there would be anything like 48 states, so the boys in '38 had to chip the elbows of the crowd-pleasers. Now each state gets only one pedestal in Statuary hall and one in other prominent corridors and vestibules or in the rotunda.

What I wanted to know and couldn't find out is what's the matter with those other ten states? Haven't they any famous sons? Or can't the folks get together on who deserves such an honor? Or are they broke?

Idaho, Arizona, Minnesota and South Dakota have only taken one spot each. The states that haven't scratched the surface yet are Colorado, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming. If any of them has even made a recent gesture toward putting a Capitol halo over the memory of one of their heroes David Lynn, Capitol architect, hasn't heard of it.

Maybe the mamas and papas out there are waiting for junior to grow up and be president.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

I guess the Finns just got tired of listening to the allies saying over the telephones, "They can't do that, they can't do that."

It may be all right to play David versus Goliath, but it gets exasperating when the big neighbors accept it as merely another midget act and go on with their homework. I figure the Finns figured it out that way.

And I guess what finally drove 'em to signing a peace pact with 'em was that crack from Neville Chamberlain that the allies were ready to answer any appeal for help from them, but that they hadn't made the appeal. That must have been the last straw.

But it's no joking matter and the world is sort of sick at heart over the peace which gives Stalin more than he originally asked for and makes the heroic stand of Finland look so futile.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

NUTRITION IS GROWTH

A unit of vitamin B is the amount of vitamin B the animal used for assay (usually a rat) requires per day to produce a gain in weight of about 5 per cent of the original weight weekly for a test period of six weeks. Not just one animal but a large group of them, of about the same age and condition must be used for the assay. The rats are first "depleted," that is, kept on a carefully prepared, weighed and balanced diet for two weeks which contains every essential except vitamin B. On this diet they cease to grow. Then they are ready for the assay or test. From this point onward they continue on the "depletion" diet, plus an additional amount of the food or medicine to be assayed. If the food or medicine contains enough vitamin B, the rats will begin to gain weight steadily; if no vitamin B is present in the additional food or medicine, no gain occurs; if some gain, but not as much as 5 per cent, of the original weight occurs, then the food or medicine contains some vitamin B but not as much as had been assumed.

The gain in weight is growth, comparable with the rapid growth of a healthy child. The addition of vitamin B—containing food or medicine to the diet which is already carefully calculated to supply everything the body needs save only the vitamin in question—makes normal growth—development in size, strength, vigor. Growth is nutrition; it is one of the vital processes the sum of which constitutes nutrition, as the physician thinks of nutrition.

A reader reports that until four months ago she had for years weighed only 95 pounds (age 33, height 61 inches). She was examined carefully by various physicians, took several "tonics," had metabolism tests and even a course of insulin treatment, but never gained appreciably. She felt "weak, nervous and tired at all times." She was so skinny that her friends (aren't they the cats?) took pleasure in reminding her and taunting her and flaunting their own well upholstered forms. It was beginning to be a complex and making her difficult to live with.

The fright happened to read an article about vitamin D and B complex deficiency here, began taking vitamin D and vitamin B complex, that is, B and G and all the other factors that are present in natural vitamin B complex and in four months gained twenty pounds. Feels better, looks better, has recovered all her old time good nature, and best of all, she is enjoying herself immensely strutting in clothes her somewhat waddy friends dare not wear, for she keeps in trim by playing several movements of The Last Brady Symphony on her metronome every morning. For complete words and music send ten cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address. Mention whether you wish to gain weight as well as keep fit.

The weight gained by this once poor girl is growth—part of it is needed fat paddings or cushions, but part of it is newly deposited calcium in bones, nerves, muscles, new muscle tissue to support her in Washington, among other things. Capital bridge tables still talk about the alleged opposition movement to delay the purchase of auto license plates, while capitol officialdom notes with considerable consternation that for too many people are waiting for the April 1 deadline.

"Prospective Progressive candidate" Harold Stafford was pretty nearly right when he said that Gov. Lell did not encourage the attorney general's appeal of the divorce tax case to the U. S. court. . . . He failed to oppose the appeal, but did nothing more.

About 50 contractors, masons and carpenters attended a meeting at the Northwestern house Tuesday night for the purpose of organizing a builders and trade association. Gov. Ashman presided and the discussion was led by Martin Boldt, A. Gmeiner, Herman Wildhage and Charles Gruenke.

Clapper Sees McNutt Probe As Major Campaign Atrocity

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
Washington—The underground scandal of Washington is the job of slow-motion political assassination which this administration is doing to Paul McNutt, Indiana's candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, through its income-tax investigation.

This situation has reached the proportions of a major campaign atrocity. You do not have to be for Mr. McNutt for president to sympathize with him in his helpless plight under this slow torture.

Mr. McNutt, like a number of other gentlemen, wants very much to be president. He was appointed by President Roosevelt last July to be federal security administrator, and at the same time he announced that he would be a presidential candidate unless Mr. Roosevelt wanted renomination. One month later Washington sent a squad of internal revenue agents into Indiana to give candidate McNutt the old fine-tooth comb right down the middle.

These investigators—and this is no reflection on them since they are merely carrying out orders—have gone around Indiana, talking to literally hundreds of people, friends and enemies of Mr. McNutt, asking them for the dirt. They went into every town where he had made a speech as governor to see if he had accepted speaking fees which were not reported on his income tax.

Federal agents went into the town of Rising Sun, Ind., where Mr. McNutt, while governor, dedicated a civic building. They asked the judge who handled the dedication ceremony if Governor McNutt had been paid for the speech. The judge made an affidavit saying that not only had no fee been paid but that Governor McNutt would have been insulted had one been offered.

Source of Whole Thing Is Still Mysterious
The editorial staff of a large metropolitan newspaper invited Mr. McNutt to be its guest at a luncheon discussion in the office. Federal agents went to the newspaper to ask if Mr. McNutt had been paid—a silly inquiry if there ever was one, but one which of course helped spread the word around that "the income tax boys are after McNutt."

From some source on high the revenue men have been pushed into a ruthless investigation. Up and down the state of Indiana, out over the country wherever McNutt has spoken, into American Legion records, into Mr. McNutt's private safe box to which he voluntarily gave the revenue agents his key, they went digging for dirt. They questioned his insurance broker to ascertain how much in life-insurance premiums Mr. McNutt was paying.

I don't know whether they found any dirt. They have been hunting for seven months and are still looking. Officials say it may be several weeks before they are through stripping Mr. McNutt—just about convention time possibly.

The federal government received its first leads from a disgruntled Indiana politician who had been kicked out by Governor McNutt and who had come under investigation himself.

Investigators Ought To Fish Or Cut Bait
Technically, the federal government keeps up the pretense that this is a secret investigation and that nothing can be said about it. Officials are not supposed to admit there is one. Of course the investigation is about as secret as Mr. Roosevelt's celebrated cigarette habit.

The fact that Mr. McNutt is a presidential candidate, the fact that poison-gas rumors about this investigation are circulating all over the country, the fact that columns of newspaper space have been devoted to it, and the fact that through it all Mr. McNutt has been making speeches upholding the Roosevelt administration, make further silence on the part of Washington officials inaccessible as a matter of ordinary decency.

Washington officials know that by their silence they are encouraging a presidential candidate. Inside the administration the stink is growing so strong that higher-ups are being urged from within the administration to come clean. If after seven months they haven't anything on Mr. McNutt they ought to say so. If they have, then they might as well shoot, for they have practically murdered the fellow already. I suspect that even around the treasury department there are people who are holding their noses.

A replica of the National Honor Society pin, awarded to a small number of Appleton High school students each year, is shown above. The replica was carved from wood by the two boys in the picture. They are Clifford Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Peters, 907 W. Commercial street, and Norman Bauhs, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bauhs, 1502 N. Morrison street. ## Woman Lawmaker Gets Final Word; There's No Answer

Washington—(U)—Representative Summer (R-Ill.) hints Wednesday that if it weren't for London tailors, some American diplomats would have to come home in barrels.

Representative Schafer (R-Wis.) had been deploring reports that Summer Welles, President Roosevelt's special representative abroad, had bought a lot of new clothes in London. Whereupon the woman legislator interjected:

"Isn't it true that too often American diplomats abroad have lost their shirts?"

State Aids to be Paid In Full Early in April

Madison—(U)—State aids due this month to local communities, including $5,300,000 for local roads and streets, will be paid in full early in April, the state budget bureau said Wednesday.

These obligations, amounting to about $18,000,000, will be met with an $8,000,000 current treasury balance and anticipated revenue from individual income, cigarette, beverage and gasoline taxes, and auto license fees.

Although the aids are due in March, payments in recent years have been two or three weeks late, and this year presents no unusual situation, the bureau said.

"There is frankly no reason to worry about the payments," the bureau announced.

Kaukauna Will be Host to 4,500 High School Musicians

High School Principal Is Chairman for May Band Tournament

Kaukauna — Plans for the May band tournament, at which Kaukauna will be host to 4,500 high school students, are well under way, with Olin G. Dryer, high school principal, general chairman. Solo competition is slated for Saturday, May 4, with concert groups performing a week later. About 1,500 are expected the first Saturday and 3,000 the next, in addition to students, instructors and visitors.

Dryer has appointed Mrs. Joseph C. McCarty, 601 W. Wisconsin avenue, chairman of the food committee. This is the first time Kaukauna has been host to such a large gathering, and to provide food facilities is a problem which all city groups must cooperate to solve, Mrs. McCarty emphasized.

Help Is Needed
Any women's organization is invited to help serve meals to the visitors, with Mrs. McCarty to be notified. A general meeting to work out definite plans will be held when enough organizations have pledged their help.

Present plans call for serving one meal, at noon, in various halls with identical menus and prices. Each organization will know in advance just how many to prepare for. Students' tickets will require them to eat at a definite place.

Outdoor Box Satisfactory Way to Start Small Seeds

AFTER FIRING THE SOIL, WATER AND PLACE BOX IN SUN AND SEEDLINGS WILL GROW.

GROW. NO NEED TO SHADE THEM, JUST KEEP SOIL MOIST.

TRANSPLANT DIRECTLY INTO THE GARDEN.

The usefulness of a "flat" or seed box is not confined to the early spring when seeds may be started indoors, or in the hotbed and cold-frame.

Even after danger of frost is over, and seeds might be sown directly in the ground, it will still pay to use a seed-box for the very small seeds like petunias, for varieties of both flowers and vegetables which require to be transplanted.

The seed-box is under closer observation than even a seed-bed; it may be carried to a shady spot during an excessively warm spell. It can be kept where the hose is handy, and soaked daily. The seedling ants may be kept growing without a check, and when they are ready to move, transplanting may be more easily performed by carrying the flat directly to the spot where the plants are to be set out.

The management of the "flat" is the same, whether it be used out of doors or indoors. The standard sizes range from 12x18 to 14x20 inches, 4 inches deep. They are nailed together loosely, and it is not necessary to bore holes in the bottom for drainage, as excess water will escape through the cracks. The flat should be filled with a fine loam, preferably sifted to get out all lumps. The coarse soil may be placed in the bottom, but only fine soil should be used on top.

When seedlings are grown in an outdoor box, it is not necessary to transplant them into pots before setting them directly in the garden. But precautions should be taken to avoid crowding so that the tiny plants may grow as sturdy as possible before they are moved. With the coarser seeds, sow thinly in rows 2 inches apart and when the seedlings appear thin out so that each stands alone without crowding. With the finer seeds, it will help to broadcast the seed rather than sow in rows. Take a separate flat for each variety and scatter the seeds over the whole box. They will have more room to grow this way.

Transplanting may be done as soon as plants have made true leaves. This means the second pair of leaves to appear. If they are left in the box longer than this, they should be thinned out, if necessary, and allowed to develop without restraint from crowding.

Slow germinating subjects are usually best handled in a flat or flower pot, which can be given regular care until the seedlings appear.

County to Move Pension Office Into Courthouse

Department Will Occupy Present Quarters of Tax Branch

The county pension department will be moved into the courthouse and the public welfare department and county soil conservation department will be moved into the city library building with the new tax division office, according to arrangements made by the county buildings and grounds committee yesterday.

The pension and welfare departments now are housed in the Odd Fellows building on E. College avenue and the soil conservation department occupies quarters in the Olympia building, W. College avenue. The pension department will occupy the quarters now used by the branch office of the tax division on the second floor of the courthouse.

Moving of the departments will take place shortly after April 1. A contract was awarded by the committee yesterday to Fred Hoeppner and Sons to install the necessary partitions on the second floor of the library building for the departments. Hoeppner's bid was $133. The county this week leased the entire second floor of the library building for a year beginning April 1.

The moving of the various departments is a result of the recent announcement of the state tax department that it would establish one of four tax division offices in Appleton. The office will be housed in the new courthouse building when it is completed.

Doomed Fountain Was Just a Bunch of Leftovers Anyway

BY DON ANDERSON

It appeared today that the fountain in front of the senior high school is just an oft-abused clod of concrete that must be taken away because the board of education and a lot of other people don't like it and that it didn't cost very much anyway.

The board of education at its Tuesday night meeting ordered that it be knocked to pieces after resumption of the WPA landscaping project this spring. The fountain is said to have jarred the esthetic sense of many people and to have baffled others who mistook it for a wide range of things that it isn't, including birth baths and watering troughs.

It appears, too, that the estimates made by members of the board of education at Tuesday night's meeting as to the actual cost of the fountain are far too generous and that it really is made up of a lot of leftovers.

A telephone call to A. James Lytle, Jr., who was supervising engineering on the new high school, revealed that the actual cost of the fountain to the board was $146.12, according to records. Seems that there was nothing very fancy about the fountain. There was a $30.40 bill for the electrical work and a $12.10 item for repainting it after an unfeeling crowd of ribald football rooters clobbered it up.

Old Staff
Beyond that, the records show this: The cement came from bags left over after other concrete work had been finished and from bags that had gotten wet and couldn't be used elsewhere.

The gravel and sand was scraped up from the remains of piles used on the walks. The glass used in the recesses had been cut from table tops taken out of the chemistry laboratory in the old high school.

The water pipe had been taken out of Lincoln school. The sewer tile was cast-off stuff ripped out of the old high school. The original paint was left over from other projects.

And so forth. Adding the electrical bill and the re-painting job, gives $42.50. Subtracting this from $146.12, gives $103.62. This was given as the cost of the materials, even though they were leftovers, so that WPA would provide the labor. Resale value of the materials probably wouldn't have amounted to more than $30.

Mark Muth, Green Bay district manager of the WPA, pointed out today that the WPA only approves projects and doesn't think them up. His remarks were directed at statements made at the board of education meeting this week that the fountain was the WPA's idea.

Describes Plan
Muth said that the landscaping project for the new Appleton High school, presented to his office Dec. 29, 1937, contained a circular area, where the fountain now stands but that the word "fountain" wasn't evident. Apparently the decision to build a fountain was made later, he said.

He said it was clearly up to the sponsors if they wanted to build a fountain and that the WPA merely furnished men and a portion of the materials.

Original plans, it was reported, entailed filling in the fountain basin with black dirt and making a flower garden out of it, with the concrete spire in the center. If enough blooms could be coaxed out, a good deal of the silt-like cement work might be hidden. But there was always the problem of winter and the naked fountain, its rough and rather simple countenance poised in front of the smart entrance to the new school.

Come spring and it will be set upon, its saucer ramps crumbled by blows from blunt objects. Soon a bed of thin-stemmed flowers will nod gently back and forth over the site of the fountain's last stand.

Jim Farley's Daughter Not in Favor of Presidential Race

Washington—(U)—A young and pretty girl who knows a lot about politics has launched a campaign against Postmaster General James A. Farley for president.

She is, of all people, his 13-year-old daughter, Ann.

It is not disloyalty that has brought out the New York school girl against her papa. The way she looks at it, it's loyalty.

Ann is simply tired of not seeing enough of the postmaster general and chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Ann lives with her mother in New York. A sister is at college and a brother at boarding school, and Mr. Farley is in Washington most of the week.

The postmaster general, his daughter claims in common with lots of other people, is good company. She wants him around more, and it's politics that keeps him away.

Girl friends have tried to persuade her that there is a difference in being the daughter of the postmaster general and daughter of the president of the United States, but it doesn't do much good.

Ann is reported to have replied that both are political jobs, and besides, she's seen the White House. The school girl has her argument.

Mr. Farley has been in Washington for seven years, and the year before he came here, he was so busy campaigning for Franklin D. Roosevelt that he couldn't spend very day with Ann.

During his service in the capital, he has made more than 1,000 speeches throughout the United States.

If Ann had her way, Mr. Farley would get a good job and settle down at home. And—she doesn't mind telling him so.

futile struggle against invasion, the government broadcast a plea for continuing in peace the cooperation and unity that was so characteristic in war.

The grim little Finnish army prepared for the step-by-step withdrawal from its snowy battle fronts as provided for both armies in Russian's truceless peace terms.

7 kilometers (about 4.5 miles) is scheduled tomorrow in the Laksas area, with similar retreat, to follow in other sectors on a schedule that calls for the last removal from the Petsamo area April 10.

Premier Risto Ryti and the delegation which accepted the Russian settlement passed through Stockholm today on their thirteenth day back to Helsinki from Moscow.

The government already has been informed of the main points of the treaty, but Ryti is bringing the full details.

Foreign Minister Tanner indicated the formality of ratification by the Finnish diet might not come for several weeks.

Tanner told newspaper men that Great Britain and France had not pressed Finland to continue the war. He expressed thanks for "large quantities" of war material they supplied, although they had no obligation to Finland and added his gratitude for the volunteers and financial help from America.

Tanner said yesterday that Finland's yielding was "the fault of democracy."

In similar vein, the sad old Finnish field marshal, Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim, declared in his final order of the day that Finland has "paid to the very last penny any debt we may have owed to the west."

(Presumably he meant any moral obligation, although he did not elaborate.)

Meet "Historic Duty"
With a touch of the old-time, however, Baron Mannerheim added: "We are proudly conscious of the historic duty which we will continue to fulfill: defense of that western civilization which has been our heritage for centuries."

The tall, seamy-faced old general who won Finland's independence from the reds more than a score of years ago said:

"Our fate has now that we are compelled to give up to an alien race, a race with a life philosophy and moral values different from ours, the ground which for centuries we have cultivated in labor and sweat."

"Yet we must put our shoulders to the wheel in order that we may prepare on the soil left to us a home for those rendered homeless and an improved livelihood for all."

Casualty Estimates
He estimated the Russian dead at 200,000; the Finnish at 15,000. Foreign military observers, however, placed the figures at 250,000 Russians killed and 250,000 wounded compared with 30,000 Finns killed and 35,000 wounded. They said the unusually high ratio of dead to wounded was due to the bitter cold, which spelled death to nearly every gravely wounded man in the open.

Of the wounded Baron Mannerheim said only: "How many those who have lost forever their ability to work."

SNOW FLURRIES TO SUBSIDE TONIGHT, WEATHERMAN SAYS

Colder temperatures expected; Northern Wisconsin Digs Out

Inhabitants of Appleton and vicinity moved about in miserable March weather today as snow and ice placed a mid-winter setting on the countryside.

Yesterday's sleet and today's snow made an unpleasant combination for both drivers and pedestrians in the city today, although the temperatures were not severe.

There were light flurries in the Appleton area today, but the Milwaukee weather bureau predicted a letup and clearing skies by evening, with lower temperatures.

Northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan dug out of one of the season's heaviest snowfalls today, but kept an anxious eye on their wind meters, fearing further drifting, according to the Associated Press.

From three to 12 inches of snow fell during the 24-hour period ending at 6 a. m. today.

The Milwaukee Motor club reported that all main highways in Wisconsin were open and passable except U S 12 between Eau Claire and Minneapolis. The roads were icy, however, and driving was extremely hazardous. Should the winds continue high, drifting may block some roads temporarily.

LaCrosse reported blowing snow, with consequent drifting, early in the day. A strong west wind was blowing at Madison. The wind velocity in the state varied from 15 to 25 miles an hour.

Then his soldier spirit showed again as he concluded: "But you have also dealt hard blows, and if 200,000 of our enemies now lie on the snowdrifts, gazing with broken eyes at our starry sky, the fault is not yours. You did not hate them or wish them evil; you merely followed the stern law of war—kill or be killed."

OCCUPY VILPURI

Moscow—(U)—Jubilant Russia announced today the red army's final triumph against Finland—occupation of Vilpuri, which the treaty of peace already had made Russian.

Besieged city apparently was the last active sector of the 105-day war. An army communiqué said the Russians occupied it yesterday five hours before "hostilities ended on all sectors of the front in conformity with the peace treaty."

Tass, Soviet news agency, reported crowded mass meetings throughout Russia to acclaim the peace which the Soviet Union scored as a gain strategically and materially.

At the time of the territorial gains, it was pointed out that the USSR may have won her most important economic corridor to Scandinavia and the Atlantic through extensive transit rights across the Petsamo district to Norway and the agreement to connect the Murmansk railroad with Sweden.

SWEDEN STUDIES PLAN

Stockholm—(U)—Sweden taking stock of changes in Scandinavia's strategic position as a result of Soviet Russia's inroads on Finland, now is preparing for an "unbiased examination" of the situation lest Finland become another Czechoslovakia.

Apparently she favors some sort of defensive alliance of the north countries to insure that the Russians will not follow up the Moscow settlement with a march to Helsinki as the Germans followed Munich with a march to Prague.

There remained, of course, the possibility that Germany herself might stand in the way of any such Russian move.

A Swedish stand for closer collaboration of the north countries—perhaps an outright alliance—was hinted last night when Swedish Foreign Minister Christian Gunther told a special gathering of parliament that the "danger is not over" and that "as a result of Finland's altered frontiers our own position has become worse, viewed generally, than it was before the Russian-Finnish conflict."

"No, but it's as good a theory as the Sergeant has to offer."

I leaned back in the chair again. I didn't know anything he wasn't living it away. I tried to figure out logical reason for murder. Fragments of the interviews would creep into my mind. Adrienne Wells knew something and Mary Ann was too composed when the sergeant asked her about Jan's half or step-brother, or whatever it was. I never could keep them straight. For a moment or two I'd think I had an inkling and then the whole thing would tangle up again. I wondered mostly about Richard MacDonald and yet I was pretty sure he was honestly upset about his sister.

After five minutes of heavy thinking I couldn't restrain my curiosity, so I said, "Have you any idea who's responsible for all this?"

He smiled slightly. "I have a faint idea, Miss Howarth, but how can I prove it is more than a hunch? That man Lathrop bothers me. From what I know of him he isn't erratic in the least, and why he hasn't shown up at his hotel all right gets me." He jumped to his feet. "You must be starving. Where do you want to have dinner?"

"Anywhere but the Knife and Fork," I said promptly. "I've had wheat cakes there twice. Last night and this morning. I'd like a beef steak or a side of beef."

He groaned. "I knew you'd be hungry, so I cashed a check on the way up here this afternoon. Put on your bonnet and we'll go to the best class place on Fourteenth street. The steaks are four inches thick and the fried onions are something to cry over."

"I'm on my way," I said. "Steak will be fine and I want at least ten vegetables."

"Somehow," he said thoughtfully, "such a large appetite doesn't seem to go with that fragile look you have."

"I always fool people," I said, putting on my red felt hat. "That's why I'm not popular. It's too expensive to feed me."

He helped me into my coat.

"There is one thing I'd like to do before we go. There are some drawings of Joan Kent's in her room that I'd like you to take a look at. I don't know a thing about them, so I can't tell whether they're good or not."

"If we don't hurry I'll eat two steaks," I said, "but for a small sum I'm willing to enlighten you on the world of art."

As we went down the hall I asked, "What will the Sergeant say if we poke around in there?"

"He gave me a key, Beautiful. He thinks I'm harmless."

He unlocked the door to Joan's apartment.

"You know, I thought the Sergeant was going to arrest me a while back," I said as we went into the room.

"There is a look that lurks in your blue eyes that baffles the Sergeant," Dirck turned on a lamp at the desk. "He doesn't know whether to fall for you or look you up."

Continued tomorrow.

Kimberly - Clark To Begin Building Mill in Ten Days

New Structure Will House Insulation Manufacturing Machinery

Neenah—Construction of a large mill by the Kimberly-Clark corporation to house machinery for the manufacture of coarse wadding, an insulation, will get underway within 10 days, S. E. Shattuck, vice president of the corporation, announced today.

The contract for erection of the structure has been awarded to the Sessil Construction company, Milwaukee. Mr. Shattuck reported, and he said that every effort will be made to hire local labor as far as it is possible.

The mill will be constructed on the bank of the canal between the old Neenah mill and the existing Badger-Globe building. These buildings extend westward from N Commercial street, and the new structure will be erected adjacent to the west extension.

The No. 1 machine at the Badger-Globe mill has been in the process of rehabilitation for the manufacture of the coarse wadding. Coarse wadding is designed for use in house insulation for automobiles, refrigeration insulation and other uses.

When the Badger-Globe installation is completed, manufacture of the coarse wadding products will be transferred to Neenah from Niagara Falls, N. Y., where up until now this business has been developed.

Concrete and Steel
To further provide for the growing production needs in this field the new mill will be erected. The design of the new machine room building will be of reinforced concrete and steel and its architecture will follow the modern trend. The building will be 75 by 240 feet two stories high with basement. On the second floor will be placed a huge speed crepe wadding machine and there will be room for another similar machine as the business develops.

It is expected that the rebuilt unit in the present Badger-Globe mill will be ready for operation this spring and the new insulation will be put on the market in November.

Interiors of the Badger-Globe mill will be revamped to convert coarse wadding into absorbent products and toilet and locker facilities will be modernized and cafeteria equipment will be installed.

Erection of the large mill is a part of the substantial program of modernization being conducted by the Kimberly-Clark corporation. A bridge now is under construction across the canal from N Church street to the Kimberly-Clark property, and demolition of old buildings in the path of the new project has been completed. Necessary changes in the system of railroad tracks and sidings also have been made.

Case for Teacher Tenure Is Given in Panel Discussion At Neenah School Auditorium

Neenah—The case for teacher tenure was presented in a panel discussion featuring guest speakers, Dr. R. B. Thiel, Appleton, Morton Williams, Neenah, Ross Rowen, Oshkosh, William Kellett, Menasha, and James Fritzen, Neenah, at the Neenah High school auditorium last night. The panel discussion also centered on the referendum on repeal of the teacher tenure law which will be presented to voters in April.

While he said he had no direct interest in the teacher tenure, Dr. Thiel, professor of education at Lawrence college, declared he was "greatly interested" as he reviewed the history of teacher tenure in the United States which had its inception here about 50 years ago when a few of the larger cities adopted it. Thirty years ago Milwaukee adopted it to be the first in Wisconsin. It was granted to teachers in teachers' colleges in the state in 1931. In 1937 it was extended to practically all teachers, later repealed as it concerned teachers in 1-room schools.

In discussing the nature of the Wisconsin law, Dr. Thiel stated that the teacher is on a 5-year probationary period and at the end of five years of successful and continuous teaching the tenure is granted him. If a teacher moves to another school a probationary period of two years follows. Teachers may be dismissed for cause and never before has the right of dismissal been given the school boards in legal statutes. The only condition in dismissal is that the teacher must be informed of the reason and must report within 10 days. Hearings may be public or private at the option of the teacher with the decision of the board final, he explained.

Right of Dismissal
"What's right about the bill? It fixed the power of boards legally to dismiss teachers for cause," Dr. Thiel said. "It avoids bickering by putting teeth into the right of dismissal. It provides a sufficiently long probationary period."

Dr. Thiel took exception to an editorial on tenure in last night's Appleton Post-Crescent which contended the law was wholly in the interest of the teacher, for he said, "that was not true. The educational system is for the welfare of the public, for the boys and girls for whom it is in existence."

Tenure prevents promiscuous jobbing around, the teachers' contracts really means something to teachers, currying of favor is eliminated and the tenure impresses upon the teachers that only good work will provide security, he maintained.

"The law has not been given a fair trial as yet and already talk of repeal is here. However, the irritation to board members is that question of married teachers. I do not believe that the problem is an insurmountable one. It is true that marriages have increased tremendously among women teachers since the law went into effect but if board members desire public opinion can be created against married teachers," the professor stated.

Williams Talks
Norton Williams, president of the Neenah school board, stated at the outset of his remarks that he was speaking as an individual, not as a representative of the school board. "I have been a member of the board for 10 years, he said, and I do not know of a single time when teacher tenure would have had to apply. I never could understand why anyone got so hot up after it was passed. I never have liked class legislation but I do believe that there are some places in the state where it is needed because of certain abuses."

James Fritzen, assemblyman from this district, said that one of the main objections to the bill was removed when the repeal of the law as applicable to rural teachers was made.

Ross Rowen, Oshkosh, president of the Educational association, presented the teachers' viewpoint, declaring that the major issue of the referendum is not keeping teachers in school systems for schools are not run to give teachers jobs but for the best interests of education in the state. If it is for the best interests of education to do away with the law, all right; but if it is for the best interests to retain it, then that is the best thing to do, he said.

Mr. Rowen outlined the development of the bill as the educational associations in the state were concerned and said that it was not designed to protect poor teachers but to protect those teachers who were good but whose boards of education were not good. The basic arguments for law are that it provided social security for the teachers protects teachers who want protection against unwarranted dismissal requires more careful original selection of teachers by the boards and does not mean that a teacher under tenure can rest "on their oars." That teachers progress and keep in step is what administrators are for, Rowen pointed out.

Sees Discrimination
Speaking on married women in teaching professions Mr. Rowen said that the attitude of the association generally is that as long as women who are married are employed in other fields there is little point in singling out women in education. If married women in employment are to be dismissed then let it be all married women instead of discrimination against teachers.

William Kellett, president of the Menasha board of education said that there is much to be learned by framers of the law by boards of education and by teachers pointing out that it isn't only selection that is important, but the continued checking of teachers by administrators and boards in order to rectify weaknesses. If each year a review of each teacher's weaknesses abilities and plans in a confidential review could be made the extent of progress and necessary direction could be determined in order that there would be no resting on past laurels.

Open forum discussion followed.

Night Owl of School Printing Class Is Ready to Hoot Again

Menasha—The Night Owl is ready to hoot again. The Night Owl is the publication printed by the students of the Menasha Evening school trade extension printing class under the direction of H. O. Griffith, printing instructor.

The publication was a regular feature of the night school classes before the old high school, burned down. For some time after that the printing department was handicapped by lack of equipment and space. With the new building and the modern equipment available there, it is again possible for the class to issue its own publication.

The first issue of volume three is scheduled for distribution at the class tonight. The students in the trade extension printing class wrote all of the copy for the paper and then carried it through the various printing processes for practical experience.

The printers received practice in setting type, both by hand and on the linotype machine, in proof reading, correction of proofs, layout, and press work. A cut of the new school building decorates the front page of the publication.

Stories on Printing
Most of the articles naturally deal with printing. Some of the subjects include "Progress in the Printing Field," "Merits Derived from Night School," "The Progress of a Joo Through the Plant," and "Proof Reading in a Modern Plant."

Howard Karrow, an employee at the George Banta Publishing company, started as editor of the publication. However, he received a promotion and a night job, so the editorship was taken over by C. Florian Merbs and the position of associate editor by Arthur Hengstler. Karrow is still listed as an associate editor.

Neenah Rallies to Defeat Superior

Red Rockets Trail 20 to
7 Before Starting
Comeback

MARSHFIELD IS NEXT

Hesselman and Miller
Spark Rockets in Thrilling Win

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau.
NEENAH.—Neenah High school basketballers looked hopefully today toward their first state championship in ten years and those who watched their sparkling, dramatic victory over Superior East here last night felt the hope was well founded.

A brilliant second half rally earned the game for the Rockets who trailed 20 to 7 at the half. Scoring 21 points, and holding the bigger school cagers to three, the Neenah lads snatched victory in the last three minutes of play with free throws by Winkelman and Hesselman and a clinching basket on a sleeper shot by Hesselman, one of the outstanding stars of the tournament.

Superior surprised the Neenah athletes with a succession of fast breaking plays which ran up a lead against Neenah of 14 to 1 midway in the second quarter. It took 13 minutes for Neenah to score its first goal, one of three gathered in the first half. The Neenah boys, however, got no bargains on the rebound. About a dozen opportunities were sacrificed before Jorgensen's cagers found the ring.

Hesselman Gets 12 Points
Superior's fast plays swung through the Neenah defense frequently in the first half of the game, but controlling the ball and taking an aggressive offensive in the second, the Neenah basketballers repeated the excitement of their first victory the previous evening over Superior, Bay of the Northwestern conference.

Hesselman, who scored only two points during the first half, found his shooting eye and dropped in four baskets and two free throws in the final half to give him a total of 12 points for the game and high scoring honors for the evening. Buxton Kettering scored nine points, as well as playing a standout floor game. Miller, known as "Rabbit" for his small size, played guard on offense and forward on defense. His ball hawking contributed much to the Rockets' rally in the second half.

Experts are picking Neenah to trim Marshfield in the semi-finals tonight and earn the right to meet the winner of the Platteville-Shawano game in the finals Friday for the 1940 title.

Betty Jameson Enters Semis at Belleair Meet

Belleair, Fla.—(P)—A meeting of the current national women's golf champion and a former champion appeared to be in the making today in the annual Belleair women's tournament.

Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Texas, present national title, had a semi-finals engagement today with Jane Colbran of Greenville, S. C., and in the other bracket, Glenna Collett Vare of Merion, Pa., a former champion, faced Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga.

While both Miss Jameson and Mrs. Vare were up against worthy opposition today, they were favored to reach the finals.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

THE EQUIPMENT MANAGERS at Lawrence and the high school are putting away the basketball uniforms these days and that means it's time for the sports writers to get in their parting remarks on the season. To use the expression conveyed by John Schommer at the football banquet last fall, it's the time of the year when things are rather dull so the sports writers dig up something.

The high school closed the season with seven wins and seven losses and finished at the top of the second division. The showing was several games short of what was expected of the boys when the first call was made last fall and probably several games better than was expected after their first performances.

This year's varsity team was, with one exception, the same group of boys who waded through second team opposition undefeated last year. For that reason big things were expected of them; instead they showed that there can be a big interval between second team ball and first team competition.

It's possible the Terrors would have fared better had they had the help of the two veterans who were expected to form the nucleus—Bill Burton and Allen Fraser. But Fraser was injured in football and saw action in basketball only in the final games and then obviously favored his knees when maneuvering on defense.

Fraser was a mighty good shot a year ago and, as Bill Burton finished the season up among Valley scorers, the duo would have given Appleton considerably more baskets than it got. Too, Fraser was a husky, rugged boy who would have made things tough for opponents trying to get Appleton rebounds.

Not that Stew Cooper didn't do very well at forward in Fraser's place. But Cooper might have been used at center or as a reserve forward or even as a guard for the mix, was fairly tall and wouldn't back up for any of the opposition. There'd have been a six or seven or eight man squad instead of five as it turned out, especially if Carlton Powers hadn't bumped into that Fond du Lac lad and came up with a broken arm. Powers had a nice lay up shot when working at guard and there were many games with Blacher and Kliefoth were terribly weak on baskets.

Appleton's victory over Oshkosh—believe it or not—probably kept the Terrors from finishing higher in the race. The boys admitted at the basketball dinner the other evening that after they beat Oshkosh the season was over. There wasn't much left for them to look forward to and their play suffered thereby. And that was a very natural reaction.

Final conference figures show that Appleton averaged 25 points a game while opponents averaged 24 points. That just about makes it an even break, what with seven wins against seven defeats.

Lawrence had a bad season in the win and lost column but the Vikings looked better in losing than a good many teams in winning. You could always depend upon them for a battle down to the last ditch and for some strange reason their weaknesses usually were so apparent and even the grandstand managers had to admit them.

The Vikings probably ran up higher scores this year than in the last five or eight but their opponents usually were a bit more potent on shooting. Also, the Vikes were troubled with lack of reserves. Whenever the team played you sat and hoped that Cape, Buesing, Lingle or Fredrickson wouldn't be chased because of fouls. They were too necessary.

At the forwards, Lawrence showed Cape and Fredrickson. They could have burned up the circuit with baskets had they ever hit on the same night. As it was, one would go well in one game, the other in another contest. Often it appeared that Cape was submerging possible scoring efforts for some of the finest defensive play of his career. It's hard to say what might have happened if he had allowed the defensive effort to go.

At the guards, Lingle and Buesing worked most of the time with Smith often aiding. Lingle's work was one of the surprises of the season, a pleasant surprise, and left little to be desired. Buesing wasn't expected to do much on offense because everyone knows he should be wearing glasses. Too, he was a senior with numerous other interests which come naturally to those who are members of the graduating class and his basketball interest suffered thereby.

If there was any particular weakness with the Vikes it was at center, a position that has been a bug-a-boo for several seasons. Not that Masterson and Schade didn't do their best. But Art is no gazelle when it comes to speed or maneuvering around the bounding board. Also, the fast pace in a good many games isn't the pace he stands for more than a few minutes. Masterson wasn't tall enough although he usually made up for it by aggressiveness. Neither Schade nor Masterson was consistent in scoring. Bill had one really big night when his hooks were working well but it was just once. He also was handicapped by the fact that early in the season he was used in several positions.

Just how close the Vikes came in Midwest games is shown by the fact they averaged 34.7 points a game to 39 for opponents. That's a difference of 4.3 points a game.

One seldom talks about next year at Lawrence because the turnaround of freshmen athletes is rather high. But if those frosh cagers are around and don't get fumbled between now and next winter, and if Fredrickson and Lingle are able to carry on from where they left off this season—it should be Art Denney's year for a change. He deserves it.

of Pittsburgh's Negro Olympic champion, when he makes his first start on Dartmouth's lightning-fast six-lap board track.

That lanky star highlights the Indians' third annual indoor record-smashing carnival, for he has assigned himself the Herculean task of running 880-yards in less than 1:49.2, the world's unofficial indoor record, claimed by England's Syd Wooderson.

They close their season tonight in Madison Square Garden against the Boston Bruins, who are half a game ahead in first place. Mathematically the blue shirted New Yorkers have a chance to win the Prince of Wales cup, but their chances don't look worth the paper it takes to calculate them on.

Even if the Rangers triumph tonight the Bruins could retain the title they won last year by beating the Montreal Canadiens Sunday and nothing seems simpler. Les Canadiens are wobbling in the cellar, embarrassed at being squeezed out of the Stanley cup playoffs for which six of the seven league members are eligible.

Nothing less than a double defeat can sidetrack the Bruins.

Woodruff Will Seek
Record in Half Mile

Hanover, N. H.—(P)—Running the fastest half-mile in human history will be the objective tonight of long John Woodruff, the University

Practically Nothing New In Baseball, Scout Says

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—(P)—Joe Sugden, who has been in the game almost half of the 100 years it has been played, says there's nothing new in baseball—well, practically nothing.

The veteran scout for the St. Louis Cardinals organization, now coaching rookies with the Rochester Red Wings, a Cardinal form club, observed:

"There's nothing much new to tell them. After all, it's the same game that we were playing before most of those kids were born."

Sugden, starting his 48th year of baseball and nearing 70, declared he saw no way of comparing the game today with what it was 40 years ago.

MENASHA ST. PATS TIED FOR BOYS CONFERENCE TITLE

Menasha—St. Patrick's grade school basketball team shared the Catholic Boy conference for the second time in succession this year winning 12 games and losing two. The Shamrocks shared the title this season with St. Joseph of Appleton while last year they shared the title with Holy Name, Kimberly. They will be one of the favorites in the annual Catholic Grade school tournament which opens Thursday night at St. Mary's gymnasium. Members of the squad shown above are, left to right in front, Donald Foth, Robert Verbrick, George Clifford, Robert Probst, Richard Broeren, and James Waters. Standing in the back row are Coach Claude G. Mayer, Norbert Schultz, Richard Miller, Albert Kobinsky, Robert Koser, and the Rev. A. S. Laque. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Greenberg Likes Playing Outfield for the Tigers

LAKE LAND, FLA.—(P)—Though the complete returns will not be until about July 4, it may be said at this point that Hank Greenberg looks surprisingly good in left field for the Detroit Tigers and that he likes his new job better every day he plays it.

Also, it can be reported that the Tigers look like a better ball club now that the big guy is roaming the outfield and Rudy York at last is in possession of first base. The one and only spot he can play really well Manager Del Baker appears to have solved one of the most vexing problems that ever confronted a big league pilot.

"Honest, I like playing outfield more than I had any idea I would," said Greenberg. "I'm not missing the first base at all, and I think maybe I'll do all right out there."

"One thing that's helping me a lot is that I can handle ground balls better than a lot of outfielders. Did you realize that an outfielder gets more ground balls to handle than he does flies? I've been stopping grounders all my life, so I'm not afraid to come in and try to trap a lot of balls that the other fellows stay back and take on the bound."

Later, watching Greenberg sprint around out there for nine innings,

DeCorrevont Will Play On Northwestern Nine

Evanston, Ill.—(P)—Bill de Correvont, Northwestern's much publicized football player, will cavort again this spring—in centerfield for the Purple baseball nine.

In fact, the off season finds de Correvont a very busy lad. In addition to being a promising candidate on a baseball squad, already crowded with 10 lettermen, he has gone politician. Last night he participated in a radio symposium on politics.

inger, veteran second baseman, from accumulated ills, and had Benny McCoy and Roy Cullenbine snatched from them by Judge Landis during the winter, they are not feeling the possible loss of Charlie Gehring.

Colorado U. Tips DePaul, 52 to 37

Go Into Metropolitan Finals Against the Dukes of Duquesne

New York —(P)—They hung the S.R.O. sign on Colorado University's bandwagon today.

The Golden Buffs saw to that last night with the most astounding—and convincing—victory of the metropolitan invitational tournament, a 52 to 37 trouncing of a fine DePaul team. That sent the Buffs into the final Friday night, and they've got their work cut out for them then.

For standing directly in their path to the title is as tough a bunch of basketballers as you ever saw—the apparently indefatigable Dukes of Duquesne, who have gone through two tourney games with only one substitution.

The Dukes ruined the 25-game winning streak of the highly-touted Oklahoma Aggies by 34-39 in a game in which the lead changed hands 11 times. That game was close, and hard fought and tense—in direct contrast from Colorado got away to a 16 point lead on the Chicagoans—and never let them get close.

Appleton Checker Club Evens Series With Menasha Team

The Appleton Men's Checker club defeated a senior team from Menasha by a score of 40 to 32 in a match at Spencer street recreation room last evening. The Menasha team previously defeated the locals.

BY BILL DOWLING
KAUKAUNA—Two Appleton quintets and Pine Grove won games here last night as the athletic council's first amateur tournament opened with 16 teams entered.

One of the two Kaukauna fives entered, the Mellow Brews, fell before Stropes of Appleton, 45 to 43, as the visitors put on a fourth quarter rally. Strengthened by the addition of Don Bixler and Joe Bloch, high school co-captains who counted 26 points between them, the locals had a 32 to 28 margin as the last period opened. Werner dropped through 15 points from his guard post to stop Stropes. The Appleton five led 20 to 19 at halftime.

Pine Grove showed a smooth working team which led all the way in subbing Elkhart, 39 to 28. The victors had margins of 11 to 8 at the quarter, 18 to 16 at the half and 26 to 22 as the final period opened. Steuble at forward rammed home 16 points for the Grove squad, while L. Moersch paced his teammates with 8.

Tornows Win
Tornow's Tavern of Appleton whipped the Pollnow squad of Oshkosh, 43 to 36, overcoming a 22 to 21 deficit at halftime. Rolfe Winters made 12 points for the winners, with Rolfe sinking 10 for Pollnows.

See Possibility of 5-Way Deadlock in FWD Bowling League

F. W. D. LEAGUE

Engineers 12 6
Purchasing 12 6
Shop 9 9

Accounting 9 9
Parts and Service 8 10
Sales 8 10
Cost 5 13

Clintville—Entering the home stretch of the FWD bowling league, Purchasing and Engineers are deadlocked for the lead, each with 12 wins and six losses. Three teams, the Shop Office, the Accountants, and the Advertising, are closely bunched behind the leaders and if these three quintets win all three games and the Engineers are dumped three games by the Sales the league will end in a five way tie. The Advertising can accomplish this by taking three from the Purchasing, the Accountants will have to make a clean sweep of the Cost and the Shop must do the same to the Parts and Service.

Last week's bowling saw the Engineers step up into a tie for first by knocking the last place Cost almost out of the bowling alley, winning all three games by easy margins. The Shop helped out the Engineers by taking two games from the Purchasing. Parts and Service put a crimp in the Advertising's sneak through with two wins out of three, and the Accountants took two from the Sales.

Gordon Richardson was again high man hitting a 583 series with Frank Joswiak second with a 547 count and John Tanty with a 545 total took third honors. Everett Bard carried away top honors for high game spilling the maples for a neat 231 game. Richardson with a 202 count and Jim Sorenson with 202 were the only others to connect with games over 200.

High singles: Bard, 231; Richardson, 203; Sorenson, 202.

HOPPIES WIN
A Hoppiensperger bowling team defeated a Green Bay squad, 2,370 to 2,265, in a recent match.

By the Associated Press
LOS ANGELES—The no-longer Deansless Cubs and the rookie studded White Sox launched Chicago's 1940 city rivalry today with the first exhibition game for each. Dizzy agreed to terms yesterday and is expected to be present Sunday when his mates meet the Philadelphia Athletics.

Lakeland, Fla.—Shagging flies and chasing hits in the outfield are putting a lot of strain on Hank Greenberg's legs these days and the veteran star of the Detroit Tigers admits his muscles are sore.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—You'll have to give the Cincinnati Reds "A" for effort, at least. They hopped over from Tampa today for the sixth attempt (four straight last fall, remember?) to get the best of the New York Yankees.

Milwaukee Plans Blackburn Fete

Lawrence Grad Completing 16 Years of Coaching This Season

Milwaukee—A testimonial dinner for Lisle (Liz) Blackburn, football coach at Washington high school since 1925, will be held at the Pfister hotel April 5. The event is being planned by Washington high school alumni, many of them former athletes, and classmates of Blackburn at Lawrence college. The committee in charge of the dinner expects between 800 and 1,000 persons to attend. Besides Washington and Lawrence alumni, invitations have been extended to high school coaches in the city and state and to coaches of midwestern colleges and universities. Civic leaders also will attend.

Blackburn has coached 16 football teams at Washington and has won the city championship five times, including two ties. Since basketball returned here in 1931, he has coached that sport and turned out three first place teams. His football record is one of the best in city conference history and his teams consistently have been winners.

Even more impressive than his high school record is the fact that many of Blackburn's athletes have become stars in college. His boys have played football at Wisconsin, Harvard, Army and Southern Methodist, as well as several state colleges.

Superior Teachers Ousted at Tourney

Kansas City, Mo.—The Superior Teachers college, Wisconsin's last survivor in the national inter-college basketball tournament, was eliminated in the second round yesterday by Delta State college of Cleveland, Miss., 57 to 40. Therman (Blackie) Blackledge, Delta forward, established a tournament scoring record by popping in 28 set last year by Gordon Rhoades of Glenville, W. Va., State. The Wisconsin five made a game of it until the half. Then Blackledge went to work and poured in 22 points in the last 20 minutes. Wisconsin's other entry, Ripon college, was eliminated in a first round game.

Yankees and Manager Bill McKechnie was so desperate for victory he planned to throw both Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters at the champs.

Orlando, Fla.—The Washington Senators are planning to give the Cleveland Indians a double dose of Latin hurling tomorrow when the teams meet in an exhibition game. Manager Bucky Harris will open with Rene Monteagudo on the mound and follow with Gilberto Torres.

West Palm Beach, Fla.—The Phillies' batting department doesn't look any more robust than last year, but the club managed to capture its first exhibition of the spring yesterday, 5-3, at the expense of Syracuse of the International league.

Winter Haven, Fla.—The New York Giants took time out today to lick wounds from a 7-3 trouncing by the Boston Red Sox and to prepare for a worse fate tomorrow—a game with the world champion Yankees.

Bradenton, Fla.—The St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Bees were short some of their stars today as they squared off for an exhibition game. For the Cards Johnny Mize and Buster Adams were on the sick list with colds. Max West bounced a foul off his own foot in a painful mishap that'll probably keep him on the sidelines along with Eddie Miller.

San Bernardino, Calif.—With eight victories and two defeats against minor league opposition, the Philadelphia Athletics took on the Pittsburgh Pirates today for their first major league test. The Pirates were to start a three-day barnstorming trip afterward, with some of the regulars remaining here while Manager Frank Frisch looks over his rookie hopefuls.

Lakeland, Fla.—The Brooklyn Dodgers, who have had some luck with castoffs, are enthusiastic over Tex Carleton, the veteran pitcher whom they reclaimed from the minors. He held the Yanks to one scratch hit yesterday and fanned six in three innings.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla.—The Cleveland Indians opened their exhibition campaign today against Syracuse of the International league, but pitcher Johnny Allen stayed behind at the Fort Myers base for his first workout. Several others of the tribe also remained in camp as Manager Oscar Vitt arranged to observe his rookies.

San Antonio, Tex.—Ball players from nearby Randolph army airfield came to the St. Louis Browns' training camp today to help the American leaguers get in shape for their exhibitions against professional teams—starting Saturday with Tulsa. Manager Fred Haney, who had some trouble making his veterans hustle during last season, says they are working as hard as the rookies this spring.

Sarasota, Fla.—The Boston Red Sox put on a hitting display that impressed the New York Giants yesterday, but when the team returned from Winter Haven it was the pitching that the coaches praised to Manager Joe Cronin, sick abed with a cold. Jack Wilson, Jim Bagby and Woody Rich, all large size question marks, gave a good accounting.

hood league matches at Elks alleys last night. Lemke Meats collected a top team game of 944 and Huesemann Insurance tallied a high team series of 2,708. Best Teas dropped two games to Bieritz Music but retained its slim lead when the second place Checker Lunch team also lost two.

WITH BAKERS AT HARTFORD

Here's Ed Wagner, guard, who is expected to give the Elm Tree Bakers considerable help in their quest for their second home talent tournament title tonight at Hartford.

The Bakers are paired with North Fond du Lac Sages in the 9:45 game. Wagner was picked as an outstanding player last weekend when the Bakers won the Rhinelander tournament title for the second straight time. He has come through regularly with baskets when needed badly in the interval has gained attention by his passing and all-around play.

Kimberly A.A. winner of the Hartford title two years ago and representing the Kimberly district this season, also will go into action tonight at Hartford for the first time in the meet. Kimberly is scheduled in the 7 o'clock game. Should Kimberly and the Bakers survive the opening rounds they'll meet in the semi-final game. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Red Ruffing's Salary Whip Still Is Ailing

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK—(P)—Those stories that Vanderbilt may be the next big college to give up football are not just fairy tales. . . There is a strong faculty bloc at work. . . Also, there is a slight matter of a 150 G deficit. . . If Ray Morrison had stayed down there they would have slashed his pay in half and cut down on the scholarships. . . Meanwhile Philadelphia papers are hailing the new Morrison-Henry Frnka-Josh Cody coaching set-up as the best Temple ever had.

Today's Guest Star
Bob Bohn, Cincinnati Inquirer: "Who is Jimmy Demaret? Remember all those unbelievable feats of golf attributed to John (Mysterious) Montague? Well, Demaret is the fellow who can do them."

The New York World-Telegram says Red Ruffing's salary whip has been under a specialist's care all winter and Red still is uncertain of its effectiveness. . . Tony Galento cut short his refereeing tour to rush back and straighten out his income tax. . . Ted Williams who has belted hell clear the 463-foot right field wall before the Red Sox leave Sarasota, twice has missed by less than five feet. . . Notre Dame supporters are disappointed because Spencer Tracy didn't land the leading role in "The Spirit of Knute Rockne."

Not So Dizzy
It's good to read that Dizzy Dean Has used what passes for his brain And come back to the baseball scene.

Florida flashes: Johnny Mize has 40 bats in the Cardinal camp. . . War correspondents with the Yanks predict Charlie Keller will out Joe DiMaggio as the club's premier hitter this season. . . Johnny Dickshot's fine showing with the Glants has the veteran Jo Jo Moore on something of a spot. . . Pepper Martin has reorganized his Mudcats, had recordings made of a folk song and is aiming for the hit parade. . . ## Rhineland High School Upset at State Tourney

MADISON—(P)—Platteville high school's basketball team took the spotlight in the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic association tournament today as a result of a 31-29 victory over Rhinelander, the 1939 Class A champion.

Labeled "the team to beat" following a high scoring performance in the opening round, the Rhinelander quintet was unable to cope with the fast and confident Platteville five which set the pace and led throughout the quarter final contest late yesterday.

Platteville's opponent in the semi-finals tonight will be Shawano, which defeated Eau Claire, 27-15, in the second round.

Despite the surprising Platteville victory, however, it was the final game of yesterday's program that took top honors for thrills, fine basketball and sheer courage. Neenah, coming from behind in sensational fashion, defeated Superior East in another championship flight contest 28-23.

Neenah will meet Marshfield, victors over Shorewood 20-16, in the other semi-final championship game tonight.

Delavan Wins

In the consolation bracket, Delavan won easily from Beloit, 28-18, while Rice Lake took a 20-13 decision from Elmwood yesterday.

The victorious teams entered the semi-finals to be played this afternoon.

The other consolation game will pit Madison Central, victors over Soldiers Grove by a 39-17 margin, against Sturgeon Bay. The Bay five had easy pickings against Pardeeville, winning 32-18.

Platteville's victory over Rhinelander was decisive. The Hillmen, coached by Wilford P. Hill, held a 15-6 lead at the end of the first quarter. They charged down fast and their work under the basket was superb. A successful stalling game was used in the last five minutes. Bob Clarke, Platteville forward, took scoring honors with 12 points. Ray Warren, Hodag center, was high man for the losers with 11.

Marshfield's victory over Shorewood was a mild upset. The Marshfield team played a determined brand of ball, setting up plays nicely and waiting for a sure shot at the basket before firing. John Conaughy, center, led the winners with six points.

Reed Gets 17 Points
Shawano's high scoring back court combination of Bill Reed and Vernal Rosenow, scored all but two of the team's points against Eau Claire. Reed was the leader with 17. Rosenow made eight.

Madison Central came to life yesterday after a drab showing against Shorewood on the opening day and snowed under Soldiers Grove 39-17. The Madison club passed flawlessly and hit the hoop consistently.

The four teams still in the running for the championship played in the Class B division last year. All but one in the consolation semifinals were former B combinations.

Conference Sets New Age Limit on Boys in Athletics

Adopts Basketball Sched- ule, Sets Dates of Ten- nis, Golf Meets

BASKETBALL schedules were adopted and officials assigned for the 1940-41 season, track details were completed and dates for the conference golf and tennis meets set at a meeting of Fox River Valley conference principals and coaches yesterday at Fond du Lac.

The conference also decided that the age limit for athletes will be 19 years after Sept. 1, 1941. The limit now is 20 years.

However, the conference ruled that if a football player reach the age of 19 after Sept. 1 he is eligible to compete that football season; if a basketball player reach the age limit after Dec. 1 he is eligible and if after March 1 he is eligible after April 1.

The exceptions were made so that the rule would not ruin a team by having some key players ineligible in the middle of the season, thereby working a hardship on the coach who lost him and on the boy who probably would be ignored in the coach's plans because he could not use him throughout the season.

Safety Measure

The change in the age limit was made as a safety measure. Studies have shown that the wider the age group in high school athletics the greater the injuries. Boys over 19 years of age are more mature and have too great a physical advantage over boys in the usual age classes of high school athletes.

H. H. Hebble, principal of Appleton High School, presented information to the conference, at the request of Superintendent B. J. Rohan. Appleton, concerning football. The matter was tabling for the group until it had more time to study the claims and because it understood similar information had been prepared for the superintendents of valley schools for the study. The information has for its purpose showing there should be a curtailment of interscholastic football.

The conference tennis meet was set for Fond du Lac on June 1 and the conference golf meet for Sheboygan on May 25.

"Now that's what I call good coffee"

How pleasant it is when chatting with your new neighbor to hear her say, "I wish you would tell me how you made the delicious coffee we had at your house last night. My husband was talking about it this morning and said . . . 'NOW THAT'S WHAT I CALL GOOD COFFEE!'"

"You can use Hills Bros. Coffee in any coffee-maker. Just follow the directions on the side of the can carefully and The Correct Grind will give you marvelous coffee every time. But don't let any body persuade you to re-grind Hills Bros. Coffee . . . you'll lose flavor, aroma, and freshness."

Write to Hills Bros. Coffee, Inc., San Francisco, for a free copy of "The Art of Coffee-Making."

HILLS BROS. COFFEE

IMPORTANT: Carefully observe timing for each method. Measure 2 level tablespoons of coffee to each cup of water. Vary amount of water slightly for exact strength desired and be sure to keep the coffee-maker clean.

WHEN USING THE DRIP METHOD: 6 to 8 minutes preferred. If less than 2/3 capacity is made, water will drip too fast, giving weak coffee.

WHEN USING A GLASS VACUUM-MAKER: Put upper bowl on after water boils. The coffee and water should be in contact 5 to 7 minutes.

WHEN USING A PERCOLATOR: Start with cold or hot water. Percolate slowly 7 to 10 minutes after steady pumping starts.

WHEN USING A COFFEYPOT: Bring coffee to boiling. Stir. Remove from fire. Add a little cold water and let stand 5 minutes to settle.

WHEN USING THE STEEPING METHOD: Pour boiling water on coffee. Stir well. Stir again in 5 minutes. Steep for a total of 10 to 15 minutes.

HINT OF THE WEEK
The steeping method is convenient for preparing large quantities of coffee. Use a clean kettle. Put the coffee in a clean cloth bag. For every 20 cups, use half a pound of Hills Bros. Coffee to a gallon of water.

Power Co. Reports Boost of $66,505 In Year's Income

1939 Net Earnings Amounted to $801,580, Stockholders Told

The Wisconsin Michigan Power company, in its annual report to stockholders, has reported that net income in 1939 (before preferred dividends) was $801,580, an increase of $66,505 over the preceding year.

Additions and improvements to the Wisconsin Michigan Power company's property and plant in 1939 amounted to $815,018, and property retirements were $346,545, a net increase of $468,473 in property and plant for the year, according to the annual report issued to stockholders.

The company's principal expenditures during last year included purchase of the Oconto River Power company's hydro-electric generating station and dam at Oconto Falls for $90,000 and the construction of a 13,200-volt transmission line from the plant to the company's system at Gillett, a distance of six miles.

The transmission system was also improved by installing a new 5,000 kilowatt sub-station at Quinnesec, Mich. Work on the addition to the Appleton city limits sub-station which will increase its capacity from 15,000 to 25,000 kilowatts is expected to be completed this month.

Rates Reduced

Commercial electric service rates were reduced in March and June of 1939, with estimated total savings to customers of $38,570 a year, according to the report.

The short-term contract for sale of power to the Wisconsin Public Service corporation for the requirements of Northern Paper Mills was terminated on February 24, 1939, due to the operation by the latter company of its own steam plant. Sales under this contract in 1939 were only $390, compared with $204,971 in 1938, but revenues for 1939 include $39,560 representing liquidating damages paid by Northern Paper Mills for exercising the option of terminating the contract before its stated maturity.

In October of 1939, employees' labor schedules were reduced to a 40-hour week in compliance with the federal fair labor standards act of 1938, increasing the company payroll about $10,000 a year.

Electric output for 1939 was 256,370,644 kilowatt hours, a decrease of 6.72 per cent from 1938. Sales of electric energy to the company's retail customers increased substantially, the decrease in output being due almost entirely to reduced sales to the Wisconsin Public Service corporation.

At the close of 1939, the power company served 36,297 electric customers, an increase of 1,348 for the year, and 9,239 gas customers, a decrease of seven.

More Appliances

Major electrical appliances placed in service in customers' premises during last year included 1,608 refrigerators, 732 ranges, and 376 water heaters, compared with 1,682 refrigerators, 722 ranges, and 348 water heaters during the previous year. These sales include those by the company and estimated sales by other dealers.

An additional load amounting to 400 kilowatts was represented by sales during 1939 to the city of Oconto Falls and the Oconto Electric Cooperative, both customers being acquired with purchase of the Oconto Falls hydro-electric plant.

Promotional activities in the rural territory were devoted in 1939 to encouraging additional farmers to apply for service and stimulating increased use of electricity by present farm customers.

Seventy-eight miles of new rural primary lines were constructed during last year and 342 farm customers were connected to these and previously existing lines. During the year, rural customers used an average of 936 kilowatt hours compared with an average of 878 in 1938.

EASTER VACATION

Easter vacation in some of Outagamie county rural schools will be the apply for service and stimulating increased use of electricity by present farm customers.

Optional with the teachers, according to Henry J. Van Straten, county superintendent of schools.

Johnson Deplores Failure to Provide Funds for Army Needs

Washington, D. C.—There is a smell in the Washington air of something like a complete dismemberment of the army defense program by a congressional refusal to provide funds to carry it out.

The navy will get by partly because the president regards himself as a navy man and doesn't pay much attention to the army, and partly because Jimmy Byrnes is in charge of the navy's needs in the senate and is man enough to see that they don't go by default.

But the army has never been any too adept at handling congressional committees. Its topside isn't altogether out of the doghouse with the administration and with congress and it hasn't any outstanding congressional champion to present and insist upon its case. Even the presentation of the case to the country has been bad. There have been too many administration polyanas speeches assuring us that the army is coming along satisfactorily in its modernization program and that there is nothing to fear.

The fact is that it isn't coming along at more than a snail's pace and that if the Caspar Milquetoast requests it has made for money to make it come a little faster are slashed, it could be a major catastrophe.

It is reorganizing in modern streamlined divisions to be entirely motorized with new rapid-fire equipment and with many of the men behind steel shields. The war in Europe is proving that, with this kind of organization and equipment, far fewer men are needed than those who are used are much better protected from death or injury, and the great speed, range and mobility will enable a few men to defend a far greater area than was ever before thought possible.

This is a vital consideration in our military problem. Our principal danger is swift and unexpected raids. From an expense angle alone, we could not defend our vast stretches of coast and territory with fixed or slow forces. We couldn't do it with what we have. We can only be sure of doing it by what we propose to get. One other problem is to be able by an expeditionary force to repel or break up any hostile lodgment in Latin America. In view of the armament of other countries, both of these problems absolutely require such an army as I have described. Until we get it, our defenses will be woefully weak. We don't need a big army, but we need a small one that can move fast and hit hard over the widest area that any nation has to defend.

Can't Go Half Way On Any Motorization

Now you can't do a half-way job on this. A motorized army has to be motorized all the way. It is tied to the speed of its slowest unit. It is an integrated whole and if part of it isn't high speed, the rest of it might as well not be. Furthermore, if you streamline your divisions on the theory that you will make up for the loss of men by armor and automatic weapons of vastly increased power and then don't provide the weapons, you have cut your defensive power in half—or worse.

It seems to me that we are making exactly this mistake right now, even with the program as it is. If the appropriations are cut, I am absolutely certain that we shall make it.

It is not an exaggeration to say that we have no usable army now. With the world at its most dangerous worst, we may be caught changing our clothes and so—very literally—with our pants down.

I don't like the air of secrecy that covers the hearings of our military committees. They do not make sense. Foreign nations know all about this condition. The people who have the best right to know about it—precisely and exactly—are the people of the United States. They know precious little and what they know is largely wrong. Perhaps if they knew more, we might get some action.

Conservationists at Fremont Hear Catlin

Fremont—Mark Catlin, Sr., Appleton, member of the state conservation commission, was the chief speaker at the educational program at Hotel Fremont Tuesday evening, under the sponsorship of the Fremont Conservation League. Seventy-three conservationists from Fremont and nearby communities were present. The meeting was preceded by a 6:30 dinner.

Mr. Catlin talked on "Fishing," and stated there were more people interested in conservation in the state of Wisconsin than in any other state. He also stressed the need for cooperation in preserving fish and game.

"Annually we plant probably 600,000 game fish," he said, "while fishermen probably catch only a small fraction of this number. What is the fate of the rest? What is the cause of this loss? If we test water levels, water temperatures, natural food supplies and that mortality of game fish in all we have accomplished as much as though we doubted the number of our fish hatcheries."

Protection against violators by action of one or more game wardens on the Wolf river at an increased salary during the pike and hite bass runs would eliminate much of the trapping and netting of pike and bass it was pointed out.

Following Mr. Catlin's talk, the annual meeting was held with election of officers as follows: Edwin Adler, president of the Fremont league to succeed Carl Abraham; secretary, Elmer Zuehlke; treasurer, Russell Toepke and Carl Abraham.

The yearly report was read by the secretary and showed that the league has increased its facilities for rearing pheasants and is able to take care of 500 pheasant chicks.

By Jimmie Fidler

Loew's State Theater, New York City—Dear Staff: It seems to me that the lads and lassies of Hollywood are making an amusing mistake by braying so furiously at the prospect of an anti-Red investigation by the Dies Committee. If they are correct in charging that Mr. Dies is publicly hunting when he talks of Communists in the movies, they are doing him an inestimable favor by squawking for the headlines. If his accusations are a tempest in a teapot, their counter-charges tend to convert the storm into a Grade A, super colossal hurricane. People are apt to conclude, ere long, that Hollywood is objecting to investigation because it has something to hide.

The Dies Committee—like it or not—has been constituted by the highest legislative authority in America. Until it is proven unconstitutional, it behooves every American—and I understand Hollywood prides itself on Americanism—to cooperate with Mr. Dies. If we actually have menacing, subversive groups in Hollywood, the motion picture industry will benefit by rooting them out. If we have no dangerous agitators, we should welcome an inquiry and a clean bill of health.

Instead of wasting ALL their dust-words on Mr. Dies, Hollywood might well save a few "damns" for the handful of stellar Pale-pinks whose "intellectual" theorizing is at the bottom of the whole mess. They have been a noisy, ridiculous lot, spouting tirades against the existing capitalistic order out of one corner of their mouths, and demanding still bigger salaries out of the other.

I don't exacting approve of slouching by political committees when we have trained G-Men who might do the same job quietly, disinterestedly and efficiently. But if Mr. Dies can put a stop to the bore-some fulminations of our million-

CIVIL WAR VET HAS 100TH BIRTHDAY

Israel Cannon, one of two Civil war veterans residing at the Wisconsin Veterans' Home, observed his 100th birthday anniversary Wednesday. Daughters of the Union Veterans honored him at a reception Wednesday afternoon.

Civil War Veteran Honored On His 100th Anniversary

Waupaca — In a setting of flowers and with the colors of the F. A. Menden post at his side, Israel Cannon, member of the Wisconsin Veterans' Home for 15 years, celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of his birth Wednesday afternoon. Almost as rare as the occasion of a centennial birthday was the appearance of the flag itself. Property of the Veterans' Home since it was established in 1887, it is now in the custody of the Daughters of the Union Veterans, Ida McKinley Tent No. 16, who sponsored the gathering. Mrs. Myra Skilling was in charge. An informal talk was given by Colonel William Holden, commandant of the Home.

The other surviving veteran of the Civil war, Morris Rockwell, was unable to be present, influenza confining him to his bed, but Mrs. Annie Cary Duggan, who will celebrate her 100th birthday May 15, enjoyed the day as much as the guest of honor.

Mrs. Myra Landry and Dr. John Thompson sang "The Boy in Blue Are Growing Old," accompanied by Mrs. Edan Daniels at the piano. At the close of the program they were joined by the guests in singing "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground." Referring to the passing of the Grand Army men of the Republic, Colonel Holden said "it is with a trace of sadness that I observe that the world today, and the United States in particular, has lost a type of people that cannot be replaced. No one coming up today can take their places; in space, yes; in noise, surely; in taxes, perhaps more, but there are not the rugged characters that possessed the old Grand Army men or the people of their day. They do not think the same nor are they as resilient."

Mr. Cannon was born in Richmond, Crawford county, New York, but he enlisted with the 23rd Wisconsin Infantry. Five of his six children are still living: Mrs. J. E. Sauer, Waupaca; Edward Cannon, Rib Lake, Wis.; Cecil Rae Cannon, Oshkosh, Wis.; Mrs. Charles Thomas, Talburt, N. Y.; and Sullman Cannon, Remsen, N. Y.
